More About the U. S. A. An Example for Mussolini Flag Raising With Song The Inevitable Stands

Dodge City, Kansas, May 8—This travels by wire from Dodge City to Chicago, thence to many cities that publish Hearst newspapers and some two hundred other cities in which this column is published. All the actual "elapsed time" over all the wires would amount to less than one second. Electricity is efficient.

This Dodge City was at first a victim of progress when railroads began carrying long trains of steers to market and the animals no longer passed through here, travelling under their own power.

In 1884, 52 years ago, eight hundred thousand, in three herds, came through from Texas, with four thousand men and thirty thousand horses, necessary on the trail.

All that business is gone, gallant cowboys no longer shoot up the cattle town, leaving their earnings behind, but still Dodge City moves ahead. Ice cream factories, city park, a country club, magnificent high school, girls' academy, theaters, flour mills, grain elevators, have replaced advantageously the romantic gambling houses and dance halls.

And this Santa Fe division point pays 1200 employes $1,800,000 a year. More than cowboys ever left here.

Giant mountains, endless plains remind you this is a big and an old country in spite of its new civilization. At the Gallup, New Mexico, railroad station stands the blackened trunk of a tree, 18 inches in diameter, now turned to solid stone. That tree, from one of the oldest forests in the world, was petrified eighty million years ago.

You pass one small town, Engel, New Mexico, and learn that you are 13 miles from Elephant Butte Dam, one of the minor irrigation reservoirs built by the United States. It would be a big one elsewhere, for it stores three times as much water as does the great Assouan Dam in Egypt.

Mussolini will please notice that, although we did take this country from the Indians, establishing a precedent for his recent activities in Ethiopia, we showed some kindness to the Indians when they stopped shooting at us and we stopped killing them.

In Arizona, New Mexico and Utah alone, the Indians possess ten million acres of reservations, some Indians are rich now, rich enough to madden the lowly Communist, oil having been found on their lands.

Those Indians may travel a short distance on their ponies and find traces of cliffs' ancient grandeur. On the side of soft rock they built "apartment houses" containing as many as 1000 rooms each.

That civilization came and went, and now, beyond the ocean, in dark Africa, Mussolini is starting another civilization, grafting modern Italy and ancient Rome on African soil, as our ancestors brought English civilization here.

The Italian flag flies over Haile Selassie's palace. He will never see that palace again, but he has boxes of gold bars with him and has moved to a safer, better climate.

Italian soldiers sang patriotic songs as the Italian flag was hauled up. The natives, after a few minutes instruction, did the Fascist salute fairly well, having carefully hidden the rifles with which they had been shooting white people, regardless of nationality, the day before.

Mr. Eden for the British Empire, accepting the "accomplished fact," says England still disapproves of Mussolini, admits that the League of Nations failed to scare the Italians, even fifty to one.

And, says Mr. Eden, Britain's horror of war, not fear of Italy, will prevent any military attack on Mussolini, any effort to free Ethiopia by force. What England will try to do, by diplomacy, Mussolini knows as well as Eden knows.

Mussolini says that Italy now has all she wants in the way of colonies, plenty of room and fertile land, millions of good workers in the Ethiopians, used to fevers and insects. They will all be freed from slavery and put on the pay roll. There is gold in Ethiopia, and oil, and Mussolini is in a mood to say to England and France, still digesting Germany's colonies:

"Move over, let me lie down beside you, I am satisfied, having swallowed all I need."

Thus, the great rock python, having absorbed a deer or donkey, remains peaceful for some time.

There, unsatisfied, is however one "rock python" named Hitler, with a strong colonial appetite. The British and France especially, wonder what he will do. Mussolini does not care; a quiet life seems not to interest him.

EX-CONVICT SOUGHT IN MAINE GIRL'S SLAYING

SEEK ARREST OF SUSPECT IN BOSTON

By John Ullman
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Waterville, Me., May 8 — Investigators of the strangle-murder of seven-year-old Mary Proulx today broadcast a general alarm for the apprehension of James Folsom, 35, of Skowhegan, described as an ex-convict.

"We want this man for questioning," announced High Sheriff Willis D. Crosby.

"He is five feet, six inches tall, weighs 150 pounds, and wears glasses. I request that his name and his picture be printed in all the newspapers and that police throughout New England be on the watch for him."

SOUGHT IN BOSTON

Waterville police, county officials and state troopers were directed to seek Folsom. A request that Boston police be on watch for him were telegraphed to that city.

Folsom, police said, served a reformatory sentence on a morals charge involving children.

Police said he came to Waterville from Skowhegan last Saturday, registered at a hotel, paid his room rent for two days in advance but checked out Sunday night, telegraphing his mother from here to forward his clothes to Lewiston where he expected to get work.

Mary Proulx vanished Sunday

'Fake Scar' Bandit Gets 20 Years

Vilo Paulekos, 23-year-old "fake scar" bandit, who held up the Orpheum Theater treasurer on April 26 and was trapped as he was getting away with $3005, changed his not guilty plea to guilty today in Suffolk Court.

Judge John M. Gibbs sentenced him to 20 to 25 years in state prison on the armed robbery charge and gave him sentences of from 3 to 5 years for carrying a dangerous weapon and 5 to 7 years for assault on four employes with a gun.

WINCES IN COURT

Because the sentences are concurrent, the youth must serve only the longest.

Paulekos had an ingenious disguise when he entered the theater lobby at 10 o'clock the night of the robbery, but he lost some of it in the scuffle that preceded his capture by assistant managers. He had a madeup scar on the right side of his face.

Today as he stood before the bar and pleaded, he was calm. But when he heard the sentences he winced. He rubbed the side of his face contemplatively — the same side where the fake scar had been. Then they took him away to state prison.

SCAR'S SECRET

Paulekos was born in Lawrence but has lived in Columbia street, Cambridge, recently. Probation officers told the court he served 19 months in Concord reformatory for robbery and had two minor traffic offenses on his record.

He was formerly a marathon dancer and amateur actor. The scar he tried to use for disguise, he explained, was composed of wax, cotton and mercurochrome, makeup he had learned from his dramatic experiences.

BIG ZEP DUE OVER BOSTON TONIGHT

New York, May 8 (INS)—The Hindenburg at 1 p. m. (EST) today was about 500 miles off the American coast, according to a message intercepted by Western Union here. At that time the dirigible was approximately 680 miles east of Cape Cod.

Germany's majestic airliner, the Zeppelin Hindenburg, roared past Cape Race, Newfoundland, today at a 69-mile-an-hour clip that will take her to her destination—Lakehurst, N. J.—by tomorrow morning.

The nose of the Zeppelin bore more southerly as she sped toward Cape Sable, on the lowest tip of Nova Scotia. She passed Cape Race at a distance of approximately 300 miles

In response to a radioed request by the Boston Evening American the record-making airship will pass directly over Boston tonight as she noses down the Atlantic coastline.

The newspaper made contact with the Hindenburg's commanders at 7 a. m. today, (E. D. T.) and received the favorable response. The Hindenburg is expected to pass over Boston shortly after midnight.

Meanwhile, Dr. Hugo Eckener, actual, if not nominal, commander of the 813-foot super airship, was delighted at the prospect of reaching Lakehurst in little more than two days.

Should that time be made—and it will, barring weather changes or an accident to her powerful engines—the Hindenburg will have shattered

Son Injured, Man Kills Himself

Worcester, May 8—Worry which he had endured since last August caused Ceri J. Edstrom, 47, of Main street, to commit suicide today.

"Dear Sadie:—I can't stand the strain and worry any longer. Ever since George was hurt he has been on my mind. God bless you and George also."

C. George Edstrom, son of the dead man, suffered injuries to his hands last August when the car in which he was riding was in collision on the Worcester turnpike.

George, a musician, was in the auto of Adolphus J. Brissette, Jr., an orchestra leader. Suit for $25,000 was filed against Brissette and the trial is underway in Worcester Country superior court.

LOOT CURLEY OFFICES OF JOB LISTS

EXCLUSIVE!

The office of Governor Curley's secretary in charge of employment, has been looted of 12 to 15 lists of persons seeking employment and the recommendations accompanying applications, it was learned today.

The theft occurred sometime between 7:45 Wednesday evening and noon yesterday, it was disclosed.

Those on the list were recommended by various state senators and representatives and the name of each sponsor accompanied notation of his applicant.

Frank Kane, assistant secretary, and the head of the state employment division, left his office shortly after 7 p. m., he told the governor and the lists were there then.

Kane's secretary, Miss Helen Devin, said that she left for home about a quarter to eight, and was certain the lists had not been tampered with at that time.

State police were immediately called in when the theft was noted, but the investigation had been kept secret.

Each of the lists is said to have contained approximately 100 names.

Captain John F. Stokes, head of the state detectives, was first notified and headed the investigating force.

Protests Raid of Rats in Newton

Frank F Martin, 56, of 11 Ellison road, Newton Center, who for over 40 years exterminated rats as part of his business, today told city health authorities that he was being forced out of his house by an infest of rats from a city dump.

Known as "Martin the Rat Man" during his many years of business, Martin today rapped the Newton board of health for not protecting property owners.

Officials of the board of health, admitting that they had received other complaints of a similar nature, said they were powerless to aid residents in that they had no appropriation to finance such an extermination. They offered Martin advice on how to go about getting rid of the rats.

"Advice!" declared Martin, "I'll give them advice, just let them do the work. I can't stand it any longer. I'm going to move."

BUDGET DEBATE DUE MONDAY

The amended state budget bill received by the House from the Senate was referred today to the ways and means committee.

Announcement was made that amendments to the bill had been made by the Senate.

Representative Albert F. Bigelow, chairman, indicatedd the ways and means committee would take no action on Senate amendments in time to enable debate until next Monday.

The budget calls for the expenditure of $67,653,709, to which must be added $3,200,000 already appropriated for flood rehibilitation work.

LANDON HITS DEAL PURCHASE OF VOTES WITH BREAD

'No Future on U. S. Relief,' Declares G. O. P. Leader

Topeka, Kas., May 8 (US)—Asserting that recovery is "still unfinished business," Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas, in a radio interview here, declared "there is no future on the relief roll."

Condemning both the administration's record in dealing with the depression and its handling of relief, the Governor, a leading Republican presidential possibility, declared himself "dedicated to the proposition that henceforth no American citizen shall ever again be put in a position where he has to sell his vote for bread."

The Governor's statements were in reply to questions asked him during the interview by H. V. Kaltenborn, radio commentator. The broadcast over a Columbia Broadcasting System was made from the Governor's study in the executive mansion here.

Early in the interview, Governor Landon declared:

"The American people are being given half a loaf and charged for a full loaf."

At one point he said:

Lashes "Deal"

"I believe that the real issue before the American people today is not whether you are better off now than you were in 1933; the real question and issue is this:

"Have we made as much progress in coming out of this depression as we have a reasonable right to expect?"

Discussing prevention of the rise of class feeling, which, he said, "I am sorry to see is being fostered in high places," Landon declared:

Confidence Needed

"I believe the greatest need of the American people today is a revival of confidence, confidence in themselves and in their ability to work, and their own problems. We find in almost every depression there is a certain percentage of people who lose confidence in themselves. They begin to doubt whether they are really capable of getting out of the difficulties, and it is usually at this point that someone comes along with the idea of finding a superman and turning it all over to him. To repeat what I have said before, what we need most in order to go ahead in this country is a revival of confidence by the American people in themselves.

"Contrary to some opinion, I believe that a presidential campaign can be made a great means of public education, one that will inform the public and give the people a chance to study and understand what the real issues are.

"You must realize that for three and a half years we have had only one side of the story. We have been up against the greatest political propaganda machine that this country has ever seen. The worst of it is, it is being paid for out of the public treasury."

Kaltenborn asked: "Well, Governor, what methods would you use to get the people to a true understanding of what the real issues are?"

Not Democratic

Governor Landon replied:

"First, I would enlist the united effort of all those people who have stopped to think what this administration in Washington is letting us in for. We must make these people appreciate that during the next six months this is the most important cause to which they can devote their time and effort.

"In planning our campaign, the issues must be made so simple and clear that every man and woman can understand them and be able to apply them to their own lives, their own future and, above all, to the future of their children. Then these issues must be personally carried to each and every voter in exactly those terms.

"If that is done, I haven't any doubt as to the results.

"We insist upon equal rights for all—special advantages for no interest or group, that is simple justice, that is also the only way we can prevent the rise of class feeling which, I am sorry to say, is being fostered in high places.

"I want to make it plain that I do not regard the administration as Washington as in any sense a Democratic administration. Its whole method of procedure has been contrary to the historic principles of the Democratic party. Certain of its objectives have been good, but its method of trying to reach them mostly bad.

"It has acted too much on snap judgments, hastily throwing its measures together and jamming them through Congress without regard for the established American processes of government. The result, too often, has been that they do not get us anywhere that we want to go. That sort of an administrative practice won't do.

"To be specific, let's take the Administration record in dealing with the depression. Some people say that we reached the bottom of this depression in 1932.

"The Administration says we reached the bottom of this depression in 1933, when they came into power.

"Now, if according to their own statement they came into power at the bottom of the depression, there is only one direction we could move from that point, and that direction would be upward. That was three years and two months ago. The Administration at that time asked for and was given unlimited power to carry out its plans. It had the whole country rolling for it.

"For example, in the state of Kansas, as Governor, I cooperated with it in every way possible. I felt that the nation's interest came ahead of any partisan interest. I believe that this was typical of the general attitude. In short, this administration in the beginning had less opposition than any administration that has ever been in power in the memory of living man. And now, in all fairness, I believe it is time for us to check the results.

"I just read a study by one of America's leading economists who has no political connections. He finds the facts to be these: The present administration has made the worst record ever made in the history of the United States in bringing this country out of a depression. Never before, once we reached the bottom, did it take us so long to get out of a depression. And our recovery is still unfinished business.

Wrecked 4 Times

"After more than three years with unequalled peace-time grants of power and spending, millions of our people are still unemployed. One person out of every six is on relief, and the deficit is bigger than ever.

"Why, if you look into the facts of the situation you will find that on four different occasions since March, 1933, this country started on a definite movement toward recovery and each of these four occasions it was set back again by some reckless experiment or disturbing move of the present administration.

"How can we feel any confidence that this won't keep on happening? What this heedless retarding of recovery means to people out of work, to young people coming of age, is simply tragic. What the young people of America really need and earnestly desire is not relief, but opportunity.

"I believe the real issue before the American people today is not whether you are better off now than you were in 1933. The real issue and question is this: Have we made as much progress coming out of this depression as you have a reasonable right to expect?"

Kaltenborn asked: "Governor, let me shift the subject. I hear a lot of talk in the East about the possibility of prohibition coming back. A lot of people in the so-called 'wet' states, knowing that you come from 'dry' Kansas, are anxious to know about the way you stand on prohibition and several have made it a point to ask me to ask you just what is your attitude on prohibition?"

"Governor Landon: I am glad you asked that question. I do not believe my position is misunderstood here in Kansas, and I do not want to be misunderstood in any other state. We, in this country, had a long national debate over the wet and dry question. The people rendered an overwhelming verdict on the question of the matter being returned to the various states for such decision as their citizenry wishes.

"I accept that verdict, and I believe that it is up to each state to determine its own policy on liquor, subject, of course, to section 2 of the 21st Amendment, under which shipments into dry states are properly forbidden.

"As to our relations with other countries, it might repay all of us to read Washington's farewell address again. I know it is said that the world has changed since Washington's time. It has, but common sense is still common sense.

"If you will read the whole address, Mr. Kaltenborn, all the reference to foreign policy, not just the one or two usually quoted, you will be amazed to see how far Washington's common sense applies to this modern age.

"I wouldn't say for a moment that we should slavishly follow Washington or anyone else, but I do say that if we go forward in this spirit we shall meet our obligations to America and the world."

Kaltenborn asked: "How should we be guided in the very difficult field of government regulation of business?"

Governor Landon: "I believe we can lay down a broad principle here. There should be regulation wherever regulation keeps open opportunity and protects, not hampers, the people as a whole in the exercise of their rights."

"I am thinking of such things, for example, as protection of childhood and of women in industry, of the workmen's compensation, the enforcement of sanitary conditions, compulsory safety devices on machinery, reasonable working hours, proper lighting and ventilation. Now, if you will expand this definition to cover all sorts of anti-social practice, you will see what I am driving at.

"I suppose it is human for a business man to get into a position where he can fix prices and eliminate competition. Perhaps, by friendly agreements or the influence of size, he imagines it will make things easier for him. But my experience has convinced me that monopoly is bad for everyone, including business itself.

Pension Plan

"Men in monopolistic positions aren't on their toes fighting. Prices are fixed and maintained so high that buying power is shut off. If technical improvements are made, the profits aren't generally, fairly passed on to labor and to the consumer, while the other groups outside the fold of monopoly, particularly agriculture, are put at a disadvantage. An opportunity is closed to the small man. I believe we have to attack the evils of monopoly, frankly and resolutely and require the government to keep a fair competitive system in force at all times. It will not do to think we can put monopoly on its good behavior and forget about it."

Kaltenborn asked: "Have you any definite ideas along the lines of social security?"

Governor Landon: "I am for it. Every big industrial nation has had to move in that direction. In America we could once handle the problem pretty well by depending on individual thrift and family aid, local taxes, and private contributions. These still have their place and a vital place it is. Some of the more progressive business enterprises have established systems of their own, thus having done some useful pioneering work. But, I believe we have reached the stage where government must take a hand.

"There is one really good point about the administration's efforts in this direction. It did stimulate and arouse study along these lines, but the complicated legislation it rushed through in characteristic fashion—well, I fear it to be unworkable in many respects.

"Our farmers and our labor unions have found that co-operative action often enables them to improve their situation; but co-operative enterprise is entirely different from a planned economy mapped out by a lot of bureaucrats ruling over Washington. This kind of a planned society is the sort that has developed under European dictatorships.

Need Overhauling

"I do not believe we want anything of that kind over here, for this type of centralized planning is based on the idea that the American citizen is not able to take care of himself and that he requires some man who must tell him what to do and what not to do. I still believe that the American people, under proper government protection, would like to plan for themselves.

"I think we have to have an overhauling. The first thing that ought to be done is to find out what the requirements actually are and what is wrong with the present setup. Let us have the truth about it, whatever it is, the people are entitled to know the facts about these enormous expenditures of their money. Not that they begrudge what is necessary, but they want it properly used.

"When we have the facts we must provide an honest and effective system administered so that the money will go to those who need it and deserve it, free from political restriction. We must make relief honest and nonpartisan, but that alone is not enough. The waste in human values is worse than the waste in money values. We must have a change in attitude and policies that will give encouragement to the person who is trying again to become self-supporting.

"Here let me say again that all this continuous experimenting and piling up of one uncertainty on the other keeps business upset and holds back undertakings that will bring more jobs. For, more jobs is the only real solution to the relief problem, jobs that will allow people to keep their self-respect and plan for their own and their children's future."

THE NEW DEAL "IF"

BY BERTON BRALEY

(With apologies to the late, great R. K.)

If you believe that more abundant taxes
Will help Prosperity to make the grade,
If you can watch the load of debt that waxes
And never fret about its being paid;
If you can keep your trust in New Deal Thinkers,
Tha Tugwells, and the Frankfurters and such,
Although these bungling economic tinkers
Have made a mess of everything they touch;

If you believe that Ickes and that Farley
Are Noble Souls, above all devious tricks,
Who wouldn't think of jobs, or even parley
With any scheme involving Politics;
If you can bear to have your private letters
And telegrams in bureaucratic files;
If you can see your liberties in fetters
And greet the sight with acquiescent smiles;

If you believe that Progress and Adventure
And Enterprise should take it on the chin;
That Thrift and Foresight rate a vote of censure,
And any Surplus is a Social Sin;
If you imagine for a single minute
That is the way the nation should be run—
Yours is the Promised Land and all that's in it,

MARTIN BIDDEN TO DINNER OF LANDON CLUB

Congressman Joseph Martin of North Attleboro, slated to succeed John Richardson as Republican national committeeman, has been invited to be guest of honor at a victory dinner to be given Representative Charles W. Hedges of Quincy, at the Hotel Touraine on May 18 by the Landon Club in the legislature, which Hedges organized.

Hedges and Court Clerk George Olsson of Brockton, were elected delegates to the Republican national convention, as Landon supporters, over an unpledged slate led by the retiring national committeeman Richardson.

Congressman Martin, originally for an unpledged delegation and now convinced that the Massachusetts delegation to the convention should vote for Governor Landon in accordance with the overwhelming endorsement given to the Kansan by the Republican voters in the primary, is in a receptive mood but has not formally declared his candidacy for national committeeman.

His election by the delegates, one of the first duties at the convention, however, is practically assured.

The congressman in addition to knowing most of the national leaders personally, has a broad outlook and will have the advantage of being posted first hand on all issues likely to be raised in the campaign.

While the total returns of the recent primary have yet to be tabulated in the office of the Secretary of State, an interesting comparison of the votes cast for Landon in the Democratic primary and for Roosevelt in the Republican primary is now possible.

A total of 1278 Republicans in the state (Fall River yet to be tabulated), voted for Roosevelt, while 179 Democrats wrote in the name of Landon. In Democratic Boston, where the bulk of the voting was done, Landon got 423 Democratic votes while Roosevelt was receiving but 193 from the Republicans.

OUR OWN IMPORTATION - A GROUP OF

PLATINUM OR YELLOW GOLD

Left: YELLOW GOLD. Center diamond set in platinum for security; remainder of the ring yellow gold. Three diamonds at either side complete a rich effect.

These diamond solitaires are superior in size and quality to those usually sold at $100. This low price is made possible by our purchasing these diamonds direct from Antwerp (thus eliminating the importers profit). Of particular interest is their dispersion or "fire", which is much greater than is to be found in most diamonds cut for the American trade.

The two rings sketched are typical of the many unusual solitaires included in this special group. It will be worth your while to come in and see them.

Other Yellow Gold Solitaires priced from $50 up. Matching Gold Weddings Rings, $5 up.

BOYS Confess Flag PRANK

HARVARD LADS FLEE CAPITAL

Washington, May 8 (AP)—Uniformed guardians of decorum at the Supreme Court fairly ached today to administer a spanking to the Harvard boys said to have conducted the Red flag raising at the august tribunal's very doorstep.

But the pranksters had taken care to put plenty of mileage between themselves and the scene of the "revolution" and so it seemed the incident would blow over.

Woods McCahill, treasurer of the Harvard Lampoon, said at Cambridge, Mass., last night that student editors of the humorous publication were responsible for the flag-hoisting and were on their way back to Cambridge by automobile.

The flaming banner of Communism flew from the Supreme Court's 80-foot flagstaff for a couple of hours in yesterday's dawn before firemen, unable to pull it down, burned it up.

But the incident remained a Red flag indeed to the court guards, and particularly to P. H. Crook, the captain.

Captain Crook was preparing a complete report of the matter for Frank Green, court marshal. The report may find its way to the August chambers of Chief Justice Hughes.

Representative Blanton (D-Tex.) took the matter seriously, and said he didn't believe the Harvard Lampoon was responsible. A real Communist did it, he said.

"If I were the President of Harvard, I would kick out a student who admitted that," the Texan said.

McCahill, at Cambridge, said the whole thing was done in "a spirit of fun."

"There was nothing malicious in it," he said. "Certainly we have no disrepect for the Supreme Court. That is one thing we are behind."

When he was asked how the editors eluded the guards at the building, McCahill said the flag raising was "well planned in advance."

B. U. to Select Queen at Junior Prom Tonight

CURLEY HOAX BOMB ACTION UP TO HARVARD

Whatever punishment will be imposed upon Leonard Farmer, 19, of Amherst, who confessed to police he sent the hoax bomb to Governor Curley, will be determined at a Harvard University administrative board meeting next Tuesday.

College officials said today that no action had yet been taken, and that if any official recognition of the prank was to be made it would come next week.

It was revealed, however, that Farmer was in conference with Assistant Dean Henry Chauncey. No details of the meeting were made public.

Farmer issued a statement in which he asserted he had mailed the package, made up of an old clock, some tinfoil and peppermint candy sticks, with the return address of George M. Davis, another student, on the wrapper, in retaliation for a practical joke played on him by Davis.

No other official action is contemplated, it was said.

Farmer came forward with his confession after state police and postal authorities had quizzed Davis. Fear that the student whose name he had used might get into trouble prompted the move.

"I had not intended that it should lead to such complications," the statement ended. "Of course the harmlessness of the contraption should prove that I meant no malice to the Governor, and I am sorry I caused so many people so much trouble."

Dance Ends Festivities

Junior Week at Boston University will come to an end tonight with annual Junior Prom in the main ballroom of the Copley-Plaza.

The prom climaxes a week of events starting last Monday with an informal interfraternity dance, which was followed by an all-B. U. field day, a co-ed tea and a jamboree held last night.

A capacity crowd is expected to attend the largest B. U. social event of the year tonight. At this affair the Queen of the Junior Prom will be crowned by Chairman Edward Gesick.

A close battle is now being waged by co-eds from every department of B. U. for the title of Queen of the Junior Prom. Rowena L'Abbe of the school of education leads the field.

Invited guests include President and Mrs. Daniel L. Marsh, Colonel and Mrs. William A. Ganoe, Professor and Mrs. George B. Franklin, and Professor and Mrs. Donald D. Durrell.

WIDOW To Bombard PRISON

AIDS "DEVIL'S TUB" KILLER

London, May 8 (AP)—Mrs. Violet Van Der Elst, Britain's militant opponent of the death sentence, hired a fleet of 10 airplanes today and announced plans to deluge Strangeways Gaol in Manchester with 100,000 anti-capital punishment pamphlets during the execution of Dr. Buck Ruxton, "Devil's Beef Tub" murderer, next Tuesday.

"All the police in Manchester can't stop me this time," said the wealthy widow, a plump and pretty blond. "Not with my fleet of airplanes!"

Mrs. Van Der Elst has demonstrated repeatedly at hangings, usually "picketing" the prison in a sumptuous limousine equipped with a blatant loud speaker.

Four thousand persons have signed a reprieve petition for Dr. Ruxton, convicted of killing and dissecting his wife and a nurse-maid and throwing the remains in a Scottish ravine known as the "Devil's Beef Tub."

The signers included three American tourists, who said they had read about the case in American newspapers and had made up their minds to visit Ruxton's "Murder House," where he allegedly cut up the bodies of the two women.

KNOX CLEARED BY GRAND JURY

The grand jury returned a "no bill" in a final report made in Middlesex superior court.

The charges were originally brought in a letter addressed to District Attorney Warren L. Bishop and were investigated by Assistant District Attorney William G. Andrew, who exonerated Knox.

The grand jury reopened the charges yesterday and heard several witnesses.

QUINS' Pa Waits TOURIST

DIONNE BUILDS HOT-DOG STAND

Corbeil, Ont., May 8 (US)—There's hustle and bustle around the Dafoe hospital for the Dionne quintuplets.

While the babies cooed happily in a shady spot on the veranda, Papa Dionne and a gang of workmen were busy drawing stone for the artificial lake to be sunk in the new grounds, expropriated by the guardians recently.

Likewise quietly working in the garden of her modest though famous farm home, Mrs. Dionne, passed her 27th birthday without ado. She received birthday congratulations from friends as far as New York, Chicago and Hollywood.

On the roadside near the Dionne farmhouse lay a pile of logs which Papa Dionne is going to use in the erection of a refreshment stand for the benefit of tourists.

The logs were cut during the past winter by Dionne on his wood lot back of the hospital. Already the peeling of the logs has begun.

As another sign of the approaching tourist season, a "hot dog" stand is being erected on the road about 100 yards east of the Dionne farm.

Pittsburgh Bids Win Tax Titles

Pittsburgh, May 8 (AP) — The City of Pittsburgh, carrying out Mayor William M. McNair's plan of auctioning off tax delinquent downtown properties, acquired two structures today for $79.15 each.

One was a three-story building, the other a two-story dwelling.

The owners owed taxes of $14,194.76 and $5,727.60 respectively.

The city, only bidder, took them over by absorbing only the costs involved.

Owners of 11 other buildings, whose properties had been listed for auction, received 30-day stays from the courts. The biggest structure among them is an eight-story building.

MAHAN FACES SPEEDY TRIAL AS KIDNAPER

Tacoma, Wash., May 8 (AP)—William Mahan came back to the scene of the George Weyerhaeuser kidnaping today with the government ready to place him on trial immediately for the $200,000 abduction of the nine-year-old lumber fortune heir.

Brought here by airplane last night after his capture by Federal agents at San Francisco, the 33-year-old ex-convict was hustled off to a cell a dozen blocks from the scene of the kidnaping May 24, 1935.

"We are ready to go to trial today, if necessary," said J. Charles Dennis, United States District Attorney.

He indicated the young kidnap victim would be the government's chief witness against the scar-faced fugitive who evaded capture for nearly a year.

Dennis and state officials agreed Mahan would be tried—unless he pleads guilty—on federal indictments charging kidnaping aid mail fraud.

MAY CALL WALEYS

Harry H. Johnston, Pierce county prosecutor, said he did not plan to ask a trial in state courts, although the state law would allow imposition of the death penalty in event of conviction.

Under the "Lindbergh" law, he cannot be sentenced to death, since the kidnap victim was not harmed. The federal indictment includes two counts charging Mahan with transporting the boy across a state line.

The district attorney refused to say whether Harmon Waley and his wife, Margaret, would be brought back from prison to testify in case Mahan pleads innocent. They are serving sentences in connection with the same kidnaping.

"We haven't come to that yet," he asserted.

Mrs. Waley is in the Milan, Mich., federal women's prison, and her husband is in Alcatraz penitentiary.

At the time of their trial Department of Justice agents and the Waleys described Mahan as the "brains" of the kidnaping.

BOY TO TESTIFY

Similar use of the boy's testimony could be expected in any Mahan trial, he added.

At the time of Mahan's capture, young Weyerhaeuser was following the routine of a "normal boy" prescribed for him by his parents after the kidnaping. Newspapermen found him watching a ball game at the public school he attends.

Asked if he was glad Mahan had been taken, George nodded, said "Uh, huh."

His mother, given the news by telephone, said, "You must be joking," then collapsed temporarily.

U. S. Probes Campbell's Career With Karpis

St. Paul, Minn., May 8 (INS)—The long, blood-smeared criminal career of Harry "Lumpy" Campbell was being probed by Department of Justice agents here today ere he is taken to the Ramsey County jail to await arraignment with his pal, Alvin "Old Creepy" Karpis, for the abductions of William Hamm, Jr., and Edward G. Bremer, wealthy and prominent St. Paul business men.

Karpis, captured a week ago in New Orleans, was questioned for more than 100 hours before being admitted to $500,000 bail. Unable to provide bail he was placed in virtual "solitary" in the "escape-proof" jail.

Federal agents today refused to comment on the rumor that information elicited from Karpis led to the capture of Campbell in Toledo yesterday.

Cripple Plans Own "Execution," Dies

New York, May 8 (INS)—Vincenzo James, 65, crippled for 15 years, committed suicide by hanging today after arranging his "execution."

Circus Girl Dies In 80-Foot Fall

Kitchener, Ont., May 8 (AP)—Sue Ulric of Los Angeles, a trapeze artist with the Conklin shows, died early today from injuries she suffered in an 80-foot fall to the ground during a performance last night.

One thousand persons saw her fall. She was making a leap from one trapeze to another when the rope on the second trapeze broke.

FALLON POLICE STATUS STIRS SPECULATION

Speculation was rife throughout the police department today over failure to appoint Captain Edward W. Fallon, acting superintendent, to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Superintendent Martin H. King.

Superintendent King's formal retirement from the office he had held since August, 1933, was announced by Police Commissioner Eugene M. McSweeney in a general order which became effective at 7:45 a. m. today.

Commissioner McSweeney refused to comment on the Fallon situation, beyond a short statement, which read:

"When Superintendent King requested retirement, Captain Fallon was appointed acting superintendent of the department, and for the immediate present he will continue as acting superintendent."

The order of retirement stated that Superintendent King had reached the age of 60 years and six months and had requested retirement.

He is to receive an annual pension of $3500 in monthly payments.

In the retirement order, Commissioner McSweeney paid tribute to Superintendent King and expressed wishes from the entire department that he would enjoy the rewards of his long service.

Lithuania Will Restore Its Diet

Kaunas, Lithuania, May 8 (AP)—A national election to restore parliamentary government after ten years of virtual dictatorship by the Nationalist Party was reported reliably today to have been set for June 9 and 10.

A Diet of 49 members, each representing 50,000 inhabitants, will be chosen, it was reported.

Hex Suspects Held in Girl Threat Case

Northampton, May 8 (AP)—Two men, who, Police Chief Wilfred J. Johndrow of Williamsburg said, threatened to "put a curse" on a girl because she was not responsive to their religious beliefs, were arraigned in district court today.

The men, Theodore B. Buck of Hartford, Conn., and George F. W. Thompson of Wethersfield, Conn., who, Johnson said, are members of a religious sect, pleaded innocent to disturbing the peace. They were released in $100 bail each for hearing May 21.

BRITAIN SOUNDS HITLER OUT ON NEW TREATY

London, May 8 (AP) — A clear declaration from Adolf Hitler as to whether Germany now regards itself in a position to conclude "genuine treaties" was requested today in a British questionnaire, arising from the Locarno crisis.

The questionnaire was made public in London today in a white paper, or government report.

"It is of course clear that negotiations for a treaty would be useless if one of the parties hereafter felt free to deny its obligations on the ground that that partner was not at the time in a condition to conclude a binding treaty," the questionnaire said.

Great Britain called attention to the German memorandum of March 24, calling for negotiation of new treaties, and suggested it was Germany's view that by its occupation of the Rhineland, in violation of the Locarno Pact, it had established a position for conclusion of effective treaties.

Other passages, however, the British questionnaire said, were "capable of a different interpretation."

The British rejected German views which "might give rise to doubt" on the position Germany takes "on continued maintenance in force of the remaining operative clauses of the treaty of Versailles and indeed any agreement which might be said to have its origin in the provisions of Versailles."

A point blank clarification of Germany's position concerning the territorial and political status of Europe was asked.

"The question is really whether Germany now considers a point has been reached at which she can signify that she recognizes and intends to respect the existing territorial and political status of Europe except insofar as this might be modified subsequently by free negotiation of an agreement," the questionnaire said.

"A decision not to attempt to accompany a western air pact by a regional agreement for limitation of air strength would be very much regretted by His Majesty's government."

'Missing' Model Home Again

(Courtesy News Service Photo)

Mrs. Lillian Moore, 32, Lynn model, was reported back at home today after mysterious disappearance Wednesday morning.

'KIDNAPED' GIRL HOME, SILENT ON MYSTERY

Mrs. Lillian Moore, attractive 32-year-old model, returned to her home in Lynn today under circumstances as mysterious as those which surrounded her reported disappearance from a Boston night club Wednesday morning.

A few minutes after the front door of her home on Newhall street had closed behind her and police had been notified of her return, she declined to see newspapermen who called at the house.

"There is nothing to the kidnaping scare," said her husband, Clifford Moore, employed as a chauffeur by a Lynn lawyer. "You can say she was visiting friends in Boston."

Mrs. Moore visited the night club with four women, according to the police report of her disappearance. At 1 a. m. she left the others at the table to make a telephone call and failed to return.

Davis Returning But Not to AAA

Washington, May 8 (AP)—Authoritative sources today indicated that the Agriculture Adjustment Administration head, Chester C. Davis, would not return to active direction of the soil conservation farm program upon his arrival from Europe late this month.

He has been in Europe for several weeks studying prospects for increasing the nation's foreign trade and will report to President Roosevelt.

Future possibilities mentioned by informed sources were:

That Davis would obtain a leave of absence or resign to assume an important Democratic post in the midwest during the presidential campaign.

That he would receive an appointment as the farmer representative on the federal reserve board.

That he might return to private business.

Eleanor Powell All Ready For New Hollywood Film

New York, May 8 (AP)—Eleanor Powell is going to Hollywood Monday with ninety pairs of shoes, two dozen new frocks, a trunkful of phonograph records, seven other trunks, numerous hat boxes and suit cases, and her mother, Mrs. Blanche Powell, of Crestwood.

Eleanor isn't going to go through what she did when she made "Broadway Melody of 1936."

That is, she isn't going to wolf her lunch in less than an hour, and dance all night, in rehearsals or making the sound tracks.

Eleanor is going to convince the studio and the directors they ought to be reasonable.

Three months of idleness—she had to quit "At Home Abroad" when her nerves cracked—have worked marvels with her. Her eyes are bright, and her dancing is in top form.

Incidentally she got her automobile driver's license yesterday—one of the six things she wants to accomplish before she is 30. The others are learning to play a good game of tennis or golf, learning to speak French, play the piano, and sing as well as Jeanette McDonald. She is 23.

WPA CLASSES TOP SCHOOLS

Washington, May 8 (AP)—A report showing that the Works Progress Administration emergency education program has more pupils than the nation's high schools and colleges will graduate this year was made public today by Harry L. Hopkins. He said the results were "gratifying."

Announcing that at the end of March, 1,485,822 persons were enrolled under 42,051 teachers, Hopkins added:

"There has been no thought, of course, of supplanting the regular school facilities, but there has been a wholesome broadening of the scope of this work, which has been eagerly received by adult unemployed and by teachers who were without professional opportunity, as well as by leading educators throughout the country, who have come to appreciate the significance of adult education."

The program, which is in addition to the part time jobs provided students by the $50,000,000 National Youth Administration, furnished instruction at "emergency colleges" for 8122 young men and women and correspondence courses for 16,703.

Other types of instruction were: General adult education, 744,638; literacy, 251,476; parent training, 89,669; nursery schools, 55,111; workers education, 53,508.

Providence Men To Ask WPA Probe

Providence, R. I., May 8—Alderman John E. Duggan and Councilor John E. Lynch today declared they would ask the City Council to authorize a complete investigation of the Works Progress Administration in Rhode Island.

Alderman Duggan charged that WPA in this state was a "racket" and said he had information to substantiate his charges.

POLICE TRAIL EX-CONVICT IN GIRL KILLING

Folsom's name was found on the hotel register and checked by police, to their satisfaction, they said, against his handwriting in previous official specimens.

State police yesterday sought him at Sabatino without success and last night at Lewiston. The hunt shifted back to Skowhegan where troopers visited his home and seized twine for comparison with that which bound the child's wrists, and today the search was centered back again in the Lewiston area.

It was thought Folsom might have found employment as a hand on some farm in the Lewiston area.

GOVERNOR AIDS PROBE

Attorney General Clyde R. Chapman supplemented Sheriff Crosby's announcement concerning Folsom with statement that the man sought had been in Lewiston Wednesday.

The attorney-general also said an investigation of Folsom's movements had disclosed he was in the vicinity of Fairfield last October. He said he was had served a sentence at the reformatory in South Windham and had been released a year ago last month.

Police clung to their theory that the latest atrocity was committed by the slayer of Annie Knights, 12, last October in Fairfield, near this city on the Skowhegan road.

Folsom, police said, was not known to the family of either victim.

As all other phases of the hunt for the murderer were subordinated to this new angle, authorities agreed that the Prouly murder was not committed by Ralph Marr, 38, of Augusta, or Harry Asher, 32, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

SOLVES DISAPPEARANCE

Asher's insistence through hours of questioning that he committed a girl murder in Waterville led indirectly today to the solution of the mysterious disappearance of Lillian Cyrway, 25, of Waterville and Unity, Me.

While her description was being given to police by Ralph Cyrway, her brother, Asher was painting a similar picture of the girl he claims to have killed in a woods near here several weeks ago.

As the result of a state-wide search, prompted in the belief that she might have been the third girl victim of murder in this territory in less than eight months, Miss Cyrway was located under treatment in a Bangor hospital.

PICKED UP IN BOSTON

Asher and Marr, both of whom were picked up in Boston as possible suspects in the Proulx case, have displayed a willingness to answer "yes sir" to practically all questions.

On the strength of his insistence that he is a murderer, however,

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

In contrast to the $3500 reward for the capture of the fiend who caused her death, and the national prominence of the case, the funeral of little Mary Proulx was markedly simple. The grief-stricken mother and father of the child, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Proulx, are seen leaving the church.

Asher will be taken on a rambling woodland trip today to give him an opportunity to point out the scene —and possibly the victim—of his alleged crime.

In ironic contrast to the $3600 price which rests on the head of her murderer, a few inexpensive wreaths lie today on the grave in Pine Grove cemetery which holds the little casket of Mary Proulx.

The services held yesterday in an Elm street undertaking establishment were simple, and few attended who were not either relatives or friends, because the family so desired.

2 Youths Grilled In Bank Killing

Oneida, N. Y., May 8 (AP)—Two youths gave their names as Harry Stevens, 18, of Mattydale, N. Y., and Charles Waterbury, 20, of Euclid, N. Y., were questioned by state police here today about the shooting of Charles M. Salisbury, President, in the holdup of the Lacona National Bank yesterday.

Capt. McGrath said the boys were captured about one mile east of Parish, N. Y., this morning and offered no resistance. Each was armed with a gun.

JAMES FOLSOM

Boy, 10, Pilots New U. S. Plane

Washington, May 8 (AP)—Propped up on pillows so he could see out of the windows, Eugene Vidal, Jr., 10, son of the Air Commerce Bureau's director, piloted an experimental airplane for half an hour and then brought it to a smooth landing.

John H. Geisse, bureau official, who accompanied the lad, said the only assistance he gave was a suggestion about wind direction and

The Normandie now holds the blue ribbon for Atlantic crossings. Her last time was four days, 11 hours and 42 minutes.

But if the Hindenburg floats over New York City, as scheduled now, at 8 a. m., daylight time, tomorrow, she will have won the title of "Queen of the North Atlantic," with a crossing in approximately two days, 15 hours and 20 minutes.

Passage of the giant Zepp over the Massachusetts cities and towns and a flight over Boston will prove the contention of Boston port boosters who maintain this city is a natural selection for the western terminus of an Atlantic airline.

BOOM PORT HERE

As the Hindenburg was soaring along today members of Congress were called upon by Representative John W. McCormack to recognize that fact.

"Boston, one of the biggest ports in the country, is the nearest to Europe," he declared. "The route taken by the Hindenburg, practically paralleling the North Atlantic steamer route, shows that Boston is directly in the line of travel."

For the 107 travelers aboard the Hindenburg, which includes 41 men and 10 women passengers, it was a cheering sight today to float through the bright sunshine over the Grand Banks.

WINDS CUT SPEED

Headwinds kept the speed of the Zepp at 60 knots, compared to the 80 knots she was making on the earlier part of her flight.

Dr. Eckener had been forced to hold his ship down to less than 1000 feet above water during heavy squalls the Hindenburg met during the night.

Today, however, she rose to 3000 feet, and with prospects of picking up more speed as headwind resistance lessened.

For the first time in history mass of the Roman Catholic Church was celebrated in the air this morning at 8 o'clock when the Rev. Father Paul Schulte mounted a portable altar in the grand social hall.

The mass was a joint offering of thanksgiving for the fortunate trip of the giant dirigible and a prayer for the prosperity of all nations.

RAIN BIG AID

This was but one more striking example of the magnificent possibilities of the Zeppelin, her commanders said.

Passengers had hardly noticed any increased swaying in the ship as she nosed against the squalls that hit her during the night, it was reported.

Heavy rains proved to be a boon. Dut to consumption of her fuel, the Hindenburg was under-ballasted.

The special texture which covers her gigantic frame is so constructed that it can pick up whatever rainwater is needed. Dr. Eckener followed five tons of water to accumulate. Then it was pumped into the ballast tanks, balancing the weight lost by fuel consumption.

ICEBERG SIGHTED

By the same token passengers were treated to shower baths if they desired. Shower-baths 3000 feet above the ocean!

Radio reports from the Hindenburg told of the thrill passengers received this morning when the Zepp came out of the fog into the sunshine and a glittering iceberg showed in the sea below off the port bow.

Captain Ernest Lehmann, master of the Hindenburg, maneuvered the ship so that all could get "close-ups" of the sun-bathed colossus that meant possible disaster to some liner, but absolutely nothing to the airship.

Should the Hindenburg keep up her speed today she will reach Lakehurst far ahead of her allotted time. For Dr. Eckener had estimated that she would not complete the record-making flight until late tomorrow afternoon instead of early tomorrow morning.

Paris, May 8 (US)—The French air ministry radioed permission to the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin, soaring homeward from Rio de Janeiro with a construction ring damaged, to fly over France.

4 Fitchburg Men Injured in Crash

Fitchburg, May 8.—Four youths were injured, three of them seriously, when the auto in which they were riding failed to negotiate a curve on the Fitchburg road in Ashburnham today.

The car ran over an embankment and overturned, pinning the four underneath the wreckage.

Norman Morin, 21, of Cliff street, former Fitchburg high school football and baseball star, suffered a possible fracture of the skull, contusions and abrasions of the back and head and the right forearm.

SLEEPS TEN YEARS

Man Wakes Thrice in Decade

Springfield, May 8—Asleep for three years, William H. Lord entered the world of the living again today for the third time since a strange sleeping sickness struck him down 10 years ago.

The 62-year-old grandfather, kept alive since October 26, 1926, by the constant care of his wife, has baffled modern science.

AWAKE 3 MONTHS

In 1930, he awoke for a short period, but slipped back into unconsciousness again. In 1933, he broke from his stupor for three months, but once more his eyelids fluttered and he fell into a deep sleep.

During his last long slumber the United States had come through the depression days, the Italian conquest of Ethiopia was made, Hitler gained complete power in Germany and many other events of world-wide importance occurred.

Today he was able to play cards and checkers with his family. He carried on sketchy conversations with them in English and French, but was unable to enter into the full life of the living because all his faculties did not return and because the long sleep left him weak and emaciated.

Today his family protected him from all excitement, hoping to bring him to complete consciousness slowly to help rid him of the strange malady.

GLORIA LIMNS LIFE

Gloria Vanderbilt tells for the first time the story of her eventful life in her memoirs, "Without Prejudice," which starts in the June Cosmopolitan.

The first installment opens with her birth in Lucerne, Switzerland, where Mrs. Garrett Hobart, wife of the vice-president under McKinley, and the Infanta Eulalia of Spain were her godmothers, and takes her up to her marriage with Reginald Vanderbilt, who proposed to her four days after he met her, and said at that time:

"All I have is a trust fund of $5,000,000 from my father. When I die that goes to Cathleen or to other children, if I have them. My physician tells me I am a sick man, and in all probability there will be no issue from this marriage. The chances are you would be a Mrs. Vanderbilt with no money."

She replied that she loved him, but would marry him only if his mother consented.

"A week later he called for me in his car. Petrified with fear, I drove with him to the Vanderbilt house, which occupied the block from 57th to 58th on the west side of Fifth avenue.

"When the door opened my heart beat so violently that I was fearful that Reggie's mother, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, might not like me. She received me in her private drawing room—a tiny, very fragile woman with a soft voice. She wore a necklace of pearls, tight around her neck.

"She spoke to me about everything except my marriage.

"A week passed, then two, and I said to Reggie, 'I haven't heard from your mother,' and he answered laughingly, 'All the Vanderbilts move slow but sure.'

"Then one day a letter arrived: "Dear Gloria: You will be at my house tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock to meet your future relatives.

"Thus in a few austere words was the seal of approval put on our engagement."

MAYOR'S HINT STIRS PARTY

Mayor Mansfield will oppose Governor Curley for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator providing Senator Marcus A. Coolidge withdraws from the contest.

This was the interpretation placed by the mayor's close friends today upon his statement in Washington that 'things may change so that the idea of running for the Senate might be very attractive."

The mayor will confer with Senator Coolidge in Washington and urge him to run for re-election, according to Mansfield's backers, and inform him of his own intentions in the event Coolidge does not become a candidate.

ITALIANS CAPTURE HARAR, LAST GOAL IN ETHIOPIA

Rome, May 8 (AP)—The capture by Italian troops of Harar, second city of Ethiopia, was reported today by the Mogadiscio correspondent of the newspaper Il Tevere.

The correspondent said the forces of General Rodolfo Graziani moved into Harar yesterday, occupying the final military objective of Italy's campaign in East Africa. Harar is control point of the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad.

(From Djibouti, French Somaliland, came reports that a large part of Harar was destroyed by fire and looting as the Italian troops approached the city.)

Il Tevere's dispatch said the chieftains and leading priests of the populace welcomed the Italian troops.

The dispatch added that the Italians were continuing northward toward the Wadara-Allafa sector north of Neghelli.

Rain and mud were the principal obstacles the Italians encountered on their way from Jijiga.

Other press dispatches said the Italians found 4000 boxes of ammunition, 12 machine guns, 14 field pieces and many rifles, with food and gasoline, in a cavern near Jijiga.

League Holds Ethiopia Still Sovereign State

Geneva, May 8 (AP)—Stirred by reports that Italy would proclaim outright annexation of Ethiopia, League of Nations officials announced today Ethiopia continued to be recognized as independent, a sovereign state and a member of the League.

Officials said Wolde Mariam, Ethiopian minister to Paris and delegate to the League, would have undisputed right to sit at the council table next week during any Italo-Ethiopian discussion.

If Baron Pompeo Aloisi, Italy's delegate, left the council room on the ground that "there is no longer any Ethiopia," officials said, new difficulties would develop for the council.

The League plans called for a short session of the council, meeting Monday, with adjournment until mid-June when both the Ethiopian and Locarno problems could be discussed in detail.

Haile in Jerusalem With Fortune in Gold

Jerusalem, May 8 (AP) — Emperor Haile Selassie and his sombre entourage reached Jerusalem today after a journey of self-exile from conquered Ethiopia.

The white-clad, sad faced little ruler went immediately to a hotel with his family and party upon arriving by train from Haifa, where they disembarked from the British cruiser Enterprise early today.

Two defeated generals, Ras Kassa and Ras Desta Demtu, are with the emperor.

Sailors and dock workers carried ashore hundreds of cases laden with gold and silver, ten tons of personal baggage and dozens of cases of liquor, which were all placed aboard the special train.

British Report Looting By Rioters in Harar

London, May 8 (AP)—Sir Sidney Barton, British minister to Ethiopia, also wirelessed the London foreign office today that looting, burning and shooting had broken out in Harar.

The British consul at Harar reported he was remaining in Harar with a guard of 40 Somali police. They have been aiding the Ethiopian governor in attempting to maintain order, the consul reported.

Mussolini to Demand League Sanctions End

Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press

Rome, May 8—A bid by Premier Mussolini for a lifting of sanctions, to liquidate finally the Ethiopian crisis and permit Italy to return to its old place in the family of nations, was predicted today.

This will be a result of tomorrow's Fascist Grand Council and Cabinet meetings, it was said.

A proclamation of annexation, informed sources said, would unite Ethiopia with Eritrea and Somaliland to become "Italian East Africa."

Fascists, foreseeing the movement with the League after seven months of estrangement, were more vexed over the attitude of France than that of Great Britain.

Informed sources, while feeling a more friendly political atmosphere from Britain, indicated France favored a settlement of the Rhineland question before lending itself to any "forgive-and-forget" negotiations between Britain and Italy.

Arlingtonite Rewarded in Addis

Washington, May 8 (INS)—Four naval radio operators who manned the tiny set at the American legation in Addis Ababa during the four days and nights of terror are to be advanced in rating.

The promotion will be made for keeping the outside world informed of developments, the Navy Department announced.

W. E. Tanner, New London, Ct., will become a chief radioman as of August 15; W. L. Pitts, Bristol, Va., radioman, 1st class, will receive a course of instruction after his return to the United States to qualify for chief radioman; C. F. Cavanah, Philadelphia, and J. W. Anslow, Arlington, Mass., both radiomen, 2d class, will be advanced to first-class ratings.

British Admiral Keyes Sharply Warns Italy

Malta, May 8 (INS)—Sir Roger Keyes, admiral of the fleet, was on record today with a sharp warning to Italy that the British fleet is "still invincible."

Addressing 300 veterans at a dinner here, Sir Roger said:

"Whatever the Italian high command may think to the contrary, the British navy is still invincible and is ready and willing to tackle any force that dares challenge it, whatever its armament.

Ras Seyoum Surrenders After Bitter Warfare

Rome, May 8 (AP)—The redoubtable Ras Seyoum, who fought the Italians more bitterly perhaps than any other Ethiopian chieftain, made his submission today, a Stefani (Italian) news agency dispatch from Asmara, Eritrea, reported.

The dispatch said the former governor of northern Tigre province presented himself to the command of the Italian third army corps at Socota, southwest of Makale, surrendered and agreed to abide by Italy's occupation.

Lloyd George Arms Plan Opposed

London, May 8 (AP)—Sir Maurice Hankey, secretary of the imperial defense committee for almost 25 years, told the royal arms inquiry today abolition or nationalization of private arms manufacture and trade at this time would be "dangerous."

Sir Maurice, who disagreed with David Lloyd George, former premier, on the subject testified:

"If and when a system for preservation of peace is evolved, private manufacture and trade in arms may disappear for lack of orders.

"To nationalize might easily involve a national disaster."

Lloyd George earlier in the week advocated a government monopoly on arms manufacture before the commission. He cited the United States' World War experience as an illustration of a wartime breakdown in private arms manufacture.

U. S. to Withdraw Engert From Legation in Addis

Washington, May 8 (INS)—Minister Cornelius Van H. Engert will be withdrawn from Addis Ababa shortly after Italy formally proclaims annexation of the conquered black African nation.

The State Department is awaiting formal announcement by Italy of the status it intends to give Ethiopia before withdrawing its diplomatic representation.

Unofficial reports reaching the department from Rome indicated that Premier Mussolini may proclaim annexation Saturday in order to present a fait accompli to the League of Nations, which meets on Monday to consider its failure to save one of its members from Italian conquest.

Vice Consul William M. Cramp is likely to be left in charge of American interests in Addis Ababa. Consular officers are accredited to local authorities rather than to governments and the fact that Cramp remained would not constitute American recognition of Italy's conquest.

Although a definite decision concerning the withdrawal of Engert has not been reached, pending an announcement by Premier Mussolini of Ethiopia's status, the view prevailed that it would be impracticable to keep him there once Italian rule is definitely established.

Sen. Schwellenbach Laundry Schemes Helped to Ruin Bank, Audit Reveals

Stockholders Bilked As Companies Failed

Seattle, May 8—When the Pacific Brotherhood Investment Co. and its subsidiary banks were in grave financial difficulty in 1927, United States Senator Lewis B. Schwellenbach and other officers and directors of the investment company owed it $25,825 on their personal notes.

And the Assured Thrift Agency, Inc., of which Schwellenbach was an incorporator and trustee, owed it $42,600 more.

And the Superior Service Laundries, Inc., of which Schwellenbach was president, owed it $10,000 more.

Senator Schwellenbach

Additional debts owed the Brotherhood Investment Company by affiliated and interlocking companies in which its officers were interested made a grand total of $255,874.06.

This was revealed by an audit of the investment company books undertaken by the California Commissioner of Corporations, according to a letter from Deputy Commissioner H. C. Ellis of California to Secretary of State J. Grant Hinkle of Wasnington on June 2, 1927.

Feared Harm

Barely a month earlier, Schwellenbach had written Hinkle confessing that the banks operated by the investment company were in precarious condition.

In a letter marked "personal and confidential," Schwellenbach confessed:

"It is an extremely difficult proposition because we realize that while we should do something for the Pacific Brotherhood Investment Co. stockholders, we feel that any action that we might take on behalf of them would result disastrously to the banks, and that more real harm would be done than could be offset by the benefit to the Pacific Brotherhood Investment Co. stockholders."

How well the interests of the stockholders and depositors of the two companies was protected is shown graphically in the balance sheet Ellis relayed to Hinkle which showed that more than a million dollars of the investment company assets were "invested" in subsidiary and affiliated companies in most of which Schwellenbach and the other officers played active roles.

Company Failed

In his letter Ellis told Hinkle:

"With reference to the audit in the above entitled matter I desire to state that our investigation shows that this company (the Pacific Brotherhood Investment Co.) has failed and neglected to comply with our said request and that no audit has been commenced in connection with his affairs."

Ellis said that the enclosed audit was but a casual check of such books as were available in the San Francisco office of the company.

In concluding his report, Ellis' auditor remarked:

"It has been almost impossible in a short period of time to ascertain the nature of various accounts, due to inadequate posting references and due to the fact that there is no explanation or supporting papers for certain entries appearing in the books. The company has recently changed bookkeepers and none of the employes were able to throw any light upon certain transactions."

Soon after this Hinkle began receiving "disquieting" information from investors and former employes. On November 2, 1928, his chief securities examiner, J. G. Bake, wrote:

"This has caused us to wonder whether the destinies of the corporations were not largely in the hands of a group of promoters rather than controlled by responsible labor leaders."

This was in reply to a letter from John R. Porterfield of Spokane in behalf of "a number of women who have invested their last dollar in this stock on the promise that they would receive good returns."

Outgeneral Labor

In another letter to Ellis, Rake declared that the railway labor leaders, who originally launched the Brotherhood enterprises, "are being outmaneuvered by the present management of the corporation which is seeking to perpetuate itself."

This was the management that owed the company more than $25,000 on personal notes when it was in financial straits.

The Pacific Brotherhood Investment Co., originally incorporated in Delaware, filed the papers required of a foreign corporation in Olympia on May 16, 1924, giving its capitalization as $1,001,000. Five months later the capitalization was trebled.

This was the company that controlled Brotherhood banks in half a dozen western cities. Schwellenbach was a vice-president and trustee of the Seattle bank at various times along with H. A. Merrick, former Non Partisan Leaguer from North Dakota who was associated in virtually all the Schwellenbach enterprises—beer, laundries and banks—and is still his close political ally and confidante.

Bank Fails in 1931

This bank, following the trail of the Superior Service Laundries and the Pilsener Brewing Co., both Schwellenbach financial operations, went to the wall in 1931.

To save the money of depositors, mostly working men attracted by Schwellenbach's labor connections, the Seattle Clearing House Association advanced half a million dollars credit to the liquidators.

This action by the rival banks enabled the payment of depositors at 100 cents on the dollar and spared stockholders from a special assessment which menaced them at the time the other banks came forward.

But that was after Schwellenbach got out of it.

Leather Thief Gets 3 to 5 Years

Pleading guilty to breaking and entering and the larceny of $785 worth of leather, Ernest Pollister, 21, of Amity street, Lynn, was today sentenced to 3 to 5 years in State Prison by Judge Frederick W. Fosdick in Dedham court.

Pollister broke into the Culver Boot Co. plant, Stoughton, April 1, and stole leather valued at $785.

Personal and Confidential

Hon. J. Grant Hinkle
Secretary of State
Olympia, Washington

Dear Mr. Hinkle:

Some time ago, if you will remember, a number of us called upon you at your office to discuss the situation in reference to the Pacific Brotherhood Investment Company. At that time we promised to give you a statement concerning the facts, and I am inclosing herewith a statement which was drawn up immediately thereafter and signed by five of the directors of the company some weeks ago. I had hoped to get to Olympia to hand this to you personally and explain the situation and it was our intention to file this statement with your office and the Securities Commissioners of Oregon and California. However, shortly after visiting you we learned that the newspapers in San Francisco had secured a statement in reference to the meetings and were very anxious to publish a story concerning the entire transaction. You probably read the stories that were printed in the paper, and I might say that they were only printed after several weeks attempt upon the part of the newspapers to get a more accurate account and were printed in the way they were because the newspapers found it impossible to get a more accurate account.

The difficulty with which we are confronted is to attempt to protect the interests of the Pacific Brotherhood Investment Company stockholders without at the same time jeopardizing the interests of the depositors in the Brotherhood banks and any publicity which might be given to these circumstances would, we feel, result disastrously to the banks. The engineers are holding a triennial conference at Cleveland during the month of June, and we have received pretty positive assurance that something will be done at that meeting to clear up the situation. For that reason we have not taken any further action and we are not working these statements to anyone other than yourself.

We are handing this to you simply for your own information and with confidence that it will be kept strictly confidential by you and Mr. Rake.

If you desire, you might take the action which you suggested of calling upon the Pacific Brotherhood Investment Company for an audit on the basis of the newspaper reports which are a matter of public knowledge. You would then be in a position, if the engineers convention in June takes no action, to determine what course of action you would want to take.

It is an extremely difficult proposition because we realize that while we should do something for the Pacific Brotherhood Investment Company stockholders, we feel that any action that we might take on behalf of them would result disastrously to the banks, and that more real harm would be done than could be offset by the benefit to the Pacific Brotherhood Investment Company stockholders.

Yours very truly,

BANKS MENACED—U. S. Senator Lewis B. Schwellenbach, in this "personal and confidential" letter to Secretary of State J. Grant Hinkle, of Washington, confessed on April 29, 1927, that the affairs of the Pacific Brotherhood Investment Company and the banks it operated were in such condition that the stockholders of one could not be aided without injuring the depositors of the others. Schwellenbach was a director of the investment company and vice-president of its Seattle bank.

Cheyenne, Wyo., May 8 (AP)—Southeastern Wyoming was blanketed under two inches of snow today.

A light rain which started falling last night changed to snow as a north wind sent the thermometer down to 30 degrees.

TEXTILE TRADE BILL PUSHED

Washington, May 8 (INS)—Backing organized labor's demand for enactment of the Ellenbogen Textile Regulatory Bill, a strong House bloc today planned to ask President Roosevelt to approve the measure.

Representative Connery (D) Massachusetts, chairman of the House Labor Committee, will ask for a rule to bring the measure up for House action next week.

The bill would create a National Textile Board to regulate fair practices in the textile industry, set a 35-hour week-week with provision for an overtime scale, and provide for regulation of prices and production should production exceed demand and depress prices.

Knox Starts Trip To Northwest

Chicago, May 8 (AP)—Col. Frank Knox planned to leave tonight for a swing into the Northwest, which will include appearances in Portland, Ore., and Seattle and Spokane, Wash.

Edward A. Hayes, chairman of the national Frank Knox for President committee, said it was the last extensive tour the Illinois candidate will make before the Republican convention in Cleveland, June 9.

Roosevelt Seeks Mass Production Housing Plan

Washington, May 8 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today he was seeking suggestions from industrial leaders on how to build up certain industries that have large capacity for expansion, particularly railroad equipment and housing.

The executive explained at his press conference this was the purpose of recent talks with such captains of industry as Bernard M. Baruch, Owen D. Young and Walter P. Chrysler.

The President said the railroad equipment industries were being held back because railroads, heavily laden with capital charges, were unable to buy equipment.

SEEKS MASS BUILDING

He added that before adequate housing for low income groups could be provided, construction would have to be placed on a mass production basis like the automobile industry.

The President said no legislation was planned for this session looking to an improvement in railroads' ability to buy equipment but the subject was being given much study.

As to housing, he said construction was picking up very well on homes for persons in the medium income groups. But he added that no way had been found to turn out a $2500 home on a volume basis to take care of a big demand for this type house.

NO RAILWAY LONS

Mr. Roosevelt said he asked Chrysler the hypothetical question of how much it would cost a local machine shop to turn out a $600 car and was informed $3500.

The President said this illustrated that houses were being built for low income groups on a local machine basis, whereas they should be on a volume basis.

THE WINNER! Kelly Petillo, at the wheel above, came first in the 500-mile Indianapolis Speedway classic. Petillo says: "Camels hit the spot. People tell me that if they went through the strain, tension, and vibration that I go through in a race, they wouldn't enjoy eating for a week. I've found that smoking Camels—during and after meals—goes a long way in helping keep my digestion in good shape." Camels always taste good. They set you right!

WOMAN'S WORK is never done, according to the old saying. Mrs. Frank Smith, photographed as she was doing her marketing, is a typical modern homemaker. "Camels are a bright spot even on the most trying days of housework," says Mrs. Smith. "A Camel when I'm tired gives me a 'lift' and smooths out my nerves too. Camels make food taste better—my digestion works smoothly when I smoke Camels during meals." Women appreciate Camel's mildness.

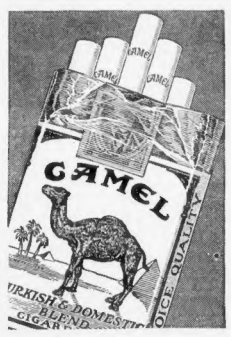
ALL ABOARD! Away from home—different food and water—irregular hours—a business man meets many conditions that upset the normal routine of digestion. Camels stimulate good digestion no matter where you are. That's one reason so many Camel smokers say: "Camels set you right!" Camels are mild, made from finer tobaccos. Smoke them for digestion's sake. It's a pleasure you can enjoy often. For Camels never tire your taste or jangle your nerves.

THE FLARE of the welding arc climbs to a temperature of 8700° Fahrenheit! Dan Rafferty guides the torch in his everyday job as a master welder. Here's a job where good condition and good digestion count. "A man has to have a steady hand and a steady eye for regular work," says Dan. "Smoking Camels during and after meals helps my digestion. Camels taste mild and rich." Turn to Camels today—for their matchless flavor and for digestion's sake.

FOR DIGESTION'S SAKE SMOKE CAMELS

PROBING THE SECRETS of the deep is Henry Siemer's job, pictured above. "Me and food get along swell together—when there're Camels to go along with the food," this master diver says. "Camels make food taste better and digest better. And boy, that mild, tasty Camel flavor is just made to order for me."

ONE OF THE PLEASANTEST EXPERIENCES of modern life is shown at the right—leisurely diners enjoying the continental cuisine at Jacques French Restaurant in Chicago and the mellow companionship of Camels during and after eating. Here soft lights and impeccable service give the perfect setting for such dishes as Baked Oysters à la Jacques and the other specialties of the house. And here again Camels are preferred for the flavor of their costlier tobaccos! "Camel cigarettes are most popular here," Jacques himself (left) observes. "Camels are clearly the favorite with those who know fine living."



Smoking Camels a Pleasant Way to Encourage Good Digestion, Good Feeling, and Increase Alkalinity

Modern days are tense and trying. So much to do. So little time. So many annoyances and worries. Nerves get "wound up." Digestion slows down. Hurry, worry, and strain tend to interfere with normal processes of digestion.

It is a scientific fact that smoking Camels has an alkalizing effect, through increasing the flow of the alkaline digestive fluids, helping to keep digestion on its proper course. Normal action is encouraged. You sense a comforting "lift" and feeling of well-being as you enjoy the delicate flavor of your Camel.

And you can smoke Camels steadily. With their matchless blend of costlier tobaccos, Camels never get on your nerves or tire your taste.

CAMELS COSTLIER TOBACCOS

● Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS...Turkish and Domestic...than any other popular brand.

THE SENATOR

Indian Sign Won't Work On Curley

To one and all along the mahogany it is very evident that The Senator is happier than a homely bride when he comes in, because The Senator lifts his hard skimmer with a bit of a flourish and tiptoes up to the bar and he says in these careless words:

"Give the boys what they will have, Timmie, and have one for yourself if you can hold one more."

THE SENATOR

"I await your congratulations, Timmie," says The Senator as Timmie pours, "and those congratulations are in the matter of Governor Jim's coming out flat-footed at last for The Senate post as The Old Senator predicted definitely as far back as two weeks ago."

Indian Sign

"But within little more than a dozen hours after Governor Jim makes his formal announcement, Timmie," says The Senator, "he gets himself made an Indian chief by a Mashpee chief called White Horse, and he has a string of beads draped around his neck, and it is indeed too bad, Timmie, if all this turns out to be the Indian sign on Governor Jim in the Senate race and he is scalped."

"That is a very low crack, I must say, Timmie," chirps The Senator, "but heigh-ho, now we come to other matters, and one of these other matters is something I have stuffed in my ear a number of days ago but I do not let go on it last Wednesday on account of I think maybe the wind might change. But now I understand the wind perhaps does not change and I refer to you, Timmie, the whisper that Governor Jim is wondering about his nomination of Mrs. Margaret M. O'Riordan, the Democratic state committee vice chairman, as state librarian."

"There is quite a screech about this nomination, I remember, Senator," says Timmie.

Only Heard Half

"You have heard only the public screeches, Timmie," continues The Senator, "and mostly these public screeches are like whistling into the wind and quite about as little effective.

"It is on account of the private screeches in deep, passionate tones, that Governor Jim is said to be ready to drop her."

So saying, The Senator pokes a little of his own screech and Timmie has poured for himself and The Senator says:

"Now coming into the mayoralty fight, which is yet far away, Timmie, I hear that Joe McGrath, the Democratic state chairman, does the smart thing and passes the word around forbidding his lieutenants to do any campaigning at all until after the election this fall.

"On the other hand, Maurice Tobin, the school committeeman, has already started his campaign. Tobin broke the official state committee slate of the Democrats and was elected delegate to the national convention.

"These boys have long been political rivals, but I think Tobin is making a mistake not to stick to his delegate knitting right now."

"You mean, senator," says Timmie, "that maybe he is liable to drop a mayoralty stitch."

"This is very true indeed, Timmie," agrees The Senator, "and the same can be said for the other candidates who come out too early. Whether or not you like Governor Jim, Timmie, you got to admit he is a sharp and cagey campaigner, like in this one when he keeps everyone on the fence. It is the suspense motif, Timmie, that holds the interest."

Well, a suspense motif is perhaps here nor there as Timmie feeds a couple of fresh ones into the bar. By the time Senator Tom Loughran buys it and so The Senator chips in his share as usual as money and deputy

American Night at Pops Attracts Fashionable Audience

By BETTY ALDEN

THE CHRISTOPHER SHOP opened up its red, white and blue bag of tricks last evening and treated all its friends to a patriotic and very enjoyable evening at the first large benefit Pops concert of the season . . .

The first surprise was the appearance of society girls in snappy little red caps and Uncle Sam pats, selling chances on a new season . . . and after transacting a lot of business with the comely members of the auxiliary corps, the conductors went into the audience number and to assist the opening of the concert . . .

PEGGY WRIGHT

As they sat at their tables they found that they were in an extensively decorated dancing stand for a patriotic parade . . . a great American flag formed a background for the orchestra and the balconies were draped with red, white and blue bunting and huge clusters of red, white and blue balloons . . .

The color motif with a profusion of these decorations, bars and stripes, of course did not overlook the music program . . . and after an overture of selections with Conductor Arthur Fiedler and selected a program of American music including favorites by Victor Herbert, MacDowell and Sousa . . .

But their greatest trick of all, was, of course, the appearance of George Gershwin as soloist with the orchestra . . . Composer-Conductor Gershwin gave a generous performance of some of his most popular compositions, bringing the concert to a very thrilling conclusion with his famous "Rhapsody in Blue" . . .

Needless to say practically everyone of social prominence attended and gathered around the little green and gold tables in happy and informal groups . . . Among the hard working committee members for the evening we noticed Mrs. Horace Morison in a gleaming gold satin gown, with Mrs. James Nelson in a vivid flowered print, Mrs. Robert Hoffman in a plaid taffeta gown of black and white, and Mrs. Wilbur Higgins in a beautiful soft gray crepe gown with a modest train . . .

• • •

Priscilla Dennett in Black Organdie

ONE OF THE JOLLIEST foursomes included Priscilla Dennett, who picked for her escort, Harry Fessenden, who is as blond as she, and Mr. and Mrs. Blythe (Ann Dennett) . . . Priscilla wore a fluffy black organdie dress with wide circular collar and puff sleeves of white organdie and her sister's print was most effective with blues and pale green flowers on a white background . . .

Mrs. Katherine Crosby Choate combined shell pink and turquoise in her ensemble . . . with gloves and necklace of the blue and dress and wrap of pink . . . and another in a striking color combination was Mrs. Ernest B. Dane, Jr., in her little turquoise Grecian dress with a violet sash and a violet velvet mandarin coat . . .

"Babs" DeMeneeal Simpson's gown had all the earmarks of a famous designer . . . of yellow taffeta printed here and there with black and flame . . . and her mother, Mrs. Daniel DeMeneeal, also wore a print which was a print, of exquisite coloring . . . "Babs," who will be celebrating her first wedding anniversary before long, has come on from New York to pay her family a short visit. Her younger sister, Eunice, was one of the sub-debs having their first fling at "doing their bit for charity" by selling chances . . .

A lot of young people seemed to congregate around the table where Catherine Olney and Lt. Richard Olney, his brother and sister-in-law, were sitting . . . and Gertrude McGinley and her fiance, Peter Jay, were with a young circle from Milton . . .

Dr. and Mrs. Irving Mixter seemed to particularly enjoy the Victor Herbert selections and also the company of their pretty post deb daughter, Elizabeth, and her escort, Dr. O. W. Stewart . . . Elizabeth was very plucky to attend even though temporarily she has to use crutches to protect an injured foot, and wore a pretty puff sleeved dress of French blue metal cloth . . .

• • •

Florence Potter, Future Bride, in Audience

SUE DALTON and her sister, Marion, were also among the music lovers, the former in a summery dress of black net with an underbodice of shell pink velvet . . . Nancy Holdsworth attended with the Robert Gorham Fullers and Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Wheeler were with Mr. and Mrs. William B. Long . . . Polly Long and Betsy Bacon were frocks of matching velvet, though Polly's was extreme in separated with a band of violets around the bodice and spaghetti straps, while Betsy's was more demure with puff sleeves and V-neck just at the point of the neckline . . .

Mrs. Wilbur Grant beamed on her daughter-in-law-to-be as they all sat together in a family party . . . Florence Potter, who has recently become engaged to George Grant, wore a pretty dress of black lace with a short jacket of starched white lace and a sprig of white lilacs in her curls . . .

Still others in the large audience were Mrs. George Peabody Gardner, Jr., Mrs. Harcourt Amory, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Steinert, Isabella Grandin, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johns, Mrs. Harrison Reynolds, Mary Frances Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Wolcott, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Aldrich, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Taft, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Saltonstall, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Guy Warren Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon MacLeod, Peggy Spencer, Peggy Blake, Mrs. Henry Laughlin, Elizabeth Everett with John Perry, Mrs. Richard P. Waters, Mr. and Mrs. John Chapin and others.

Garden Tour in Milton

Olivia Peters, Caroline Pierce, Janet Forbes, Jessie Fay, Rosamond Whitney and Elizabeth Watson will be among the debs and for the benefit of several Milton post-debs who will act as waitresses serving refreshments under the gnarled old apple trees beside the 100-yearold farmhouse on Mrs. Philip L. Spalding's property, next Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Spalding's estate is one of 10 Milton places which will open their gardens to the public on Thursday of the committee in charge of arrangement, for the day. Mrs. Herbert C. Gilbert is supervising the luncheon and tea arrangements.

GRACE NELSON

JANE NELSON

INCLUDED IN the bevy of society's young daughters who assisted at the American Night Pop Concert in Symphony Hall last night were Jane and Grace Nelson, the attractive daughters of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Nelson of Chestnut Hill, who did their bit for their mother's favorite charity, the Christopher Shop.

Style Show Planned

Mrs. Edward Upton opened her Marlborough home yesterday afternoon to members of the fashion show committee of the North Shore Branch of the American Association of University Women.

Wearing a tan spring outfit Mrs. Ralf P. Emerson of Salem, chairman of the Massachusetts division Loan Fund, poured, and the committee discussed the final arrangements for their fashion show which is to be held in Hamilton Hall Salem, on Friday afternoon, May 22. Mrs. Upton was attractively turned out in an afternoon dress of flowered silk.

A representative from each of the towns from Beckport to Nahant was selected from the 30 odd committee members, to take charge of the table reservations. Among those selected are Mrs. Paul C. Souris for Lynn, who wore a suit of powder blue with a blouse of peach colored lace and a small blue hat; Miss Hazel E. Prescott for Beverly, and Mrs. Everett R. Wilkinson, wearing an ensemble in soft brown, . . .

. . . representative for Swampscott, Mrs. Walter W. Annable, for Salem and Mrs. Robert W. Learoyd, for Danvers, all wore the smart new mannish . . . equisite plaid, made with a three quarter length coat and a silver . . .

Barnum and Bailey and Ringling Brothers' circus came to the Children's Hospital in Longwood avenue. How the clowns thrilled the children! Clowns Frederico Canestrelli and Dick O'Connor entertain Edith Bornstein and James Erricola, as Nurse Betty Burdett looks on. The clowns brought several of the best dogs of the show with them.

CIRCUS COMES TO HOSPITAL

Clowns and other performers of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus today made a special pilgrimage to Children's Hospital. Long a favorite haunt of the circus folk there...

Although the circus has been here many days in preparation for its Boston engagement, the performers did not get to make their pilgrimage to the hospital to bring joy and brightness to the faces of the bed-ridden tots.

Curley Waits Budget Test In House

As it came back to the House for approval the 1936 appropriation bill had been chopped to the extent of $8,000,000 a year, or $5,000,000 more than the governor originally had asked.

The governor, after a week of [illegible] parleys with Senate leaders, decided to [illegible] the budget as it was.

"There was nothing else they could do other than restore the items," Governor Curley said of the Senate's treatment of the budget.

Otherwise there could be no reduction in the tremendous number of unemployed."

CHAPTER 41

Presently, and rather to her annoyance, she was behind the scenes, having a disinfectant dabbed upon the scratch, and a strip of gauze wound around her hand.

Thereafter, she walked down Broadway and entered a newsreel theater, which featured, in part, some vivid travel scenes . . . Jimmy was to travel, see the world? When he was gone, evenings like this were to be her portion?

Anger died, and tears sprang to her eyes.

Why had one . . .

"Meester Quackenbush — you theenk he like you to do that?" she asked softly, insinuatingly.

But Luana did not take in the real import of the question, unfortunately.

"What's it go to do with him what I do in . . .

"So? You don't care, no?"

Boldly, Luana was copying the models for her own use! That was Yvonne's opinion.

In the building where she lived, there was a "little dressmaker" extremely clever in carrying out even the roughest design Yvonne drew badly, but together they had made more than one gown that was an exact reproduction of the $300 and $400 models in the House of Quackenbush, and these Yvonne had worn on week-end trips with Armand when there was no likelihood of the boss' or any of "the girls" seeing them . . .

To appeal . . . without authorization, would of course mean instant dismissal!

Yvonne had been on the verge of making actual cash money from the "little dressmaker" by going even farther in design-stealing . . .

But Armand had stepped in!

"You fool! You could be sent to prison for that! It's not a few paltry dollars! Anything illegal on the . . . is bad reason" to it, but anything less than the . . . was . . . because of the risk it . . . caught. Thus Armand's logic.

A wealthy wholesaler, now? There was one who could keep his own counsel, and yet pay handsomely, over on Eighth avenue in the lower Twenties . . . But Armand did not tell Yvonne about him and his offer. That was Armand's secret.

"Madame Vandaveer — she do not come to the shop nearly so often now," Yvonne remarked a new and thrilling suspicion striking her . . . "Perhaps . . . is . . . shoulder. "Yesterday she send for you on the telephone, Luana. You go? What she want with you?"

Worried about Jimmy and their quarrel and his imminent departure, the name of Mrs Vandaveer was one she did not wish to hear. Luana did not reply.

You Look Sick

but a slow . . . from the V . . . her cheeks an . . . flush. Yvonne misunderstood its meaning, knowing nothing of Jimmy's connection with Mrs. Vandaveer. She took this as proof positive of something else!

Wednesday night went by, and no word from Jimmy. Yvonne was out of the . . . Luana worked at her drawing.

He did not telephone the shop on Thursday, and on Thursday night when she was again alone in the apartment, her heart was like lead.

That he could leave her without a word or sign was too incredible . . . when she had told him that she . . . and . . . stand . . . to . . .

Yvonne . . . ing room . . . during . . . Luana . . . ideas . . . fish.

. . . work badly. She was in a daze. Things seemed to blur and swim before her vision. She felt curiously light-headed.

Mr. Quackenbush reproved her for walking badly, for stumbling in front of customers in her long gowns. She stared dully at him, saying nothing. He put his hand on her right arm, to swing her round so as to display a new . . . in the skirt to an interest . . . but she did not even . . . I was as though she were numb.

"Handsome" telephoned her at the shop, but she sent a message that she was busy.

Armand came into the salon at a quarter of four. He stared sharply at her, saw her pallor, her heavy eyelids.

"You look sick, Luana. You look as if you'd a touch of flu. . . . . get to bed." he suggested. He came up to her, caught her left hand and found it hot. "You're feverish. Go on home," he urged her.

"If I were you, Miss, I'd take a couple of aspirin and a nice glass of hot toddy after I'd had a bath as hot as I could stand it, and then I'd get right into bed and sleep it off, Miss."

Thus the drug clerk.

"Very well," apathetically. She permitted him to wrap up the aspirins, and a small bottle of whiskey, and a couple of lemons from the soda counter.

"And don't forget a dessert . . . and Scotch in very hot water," . . . for several minutes.

Her head and arm were still quite useless. That was odd.

The kettle was singing on the stove as she emerged in the dressing-gown that she had supped over her blue silk pajamas.

She made the toddy. She took the two aspirins and a little cold water. Then she drank the hot concoction slowly and stretched out on the divan in the living room, a hot . . . spread . . . she was asleep.

It was 9 o'clock when she awoke.

Fashion Flashes

FANS also are distinctly in the . . . summer 1936 . . . a fan of red carnations, for instance, is the last word in . . . ensure to go with a dance frock of crisp white mousseline, be-ruffled and be-frilled, with maybe a narrow sash of red grosgrain ribbon, and red patent leather sandals.

If you're the sophisticated type, you may have a mask fan. It's just as good for flirtatious purposes.

Other revivals of Gibson girl coquetry include the current importance of flowers in the hair. . . . . and . . . .

. . . . . with . . . .

. . . . . frame and you . . . . . with . . . .

. . . . . frame gives you a . . . . . al calorie allowance, ... your reducing calories . . . . . proportionately high. For . . . . . when 2,000 calories a day . . . . . the number of . . . . . allowed in a reducing diet, multiply the weight that is normal for your build by 15. Use . . . . . two-thirds of this total as your . . . . . diet when reducing. This . . . . . scientific calorie reduction will protect your health and safeguard your appearance.

Aside from high vitality, another enviable characteristic of the large woman is a superb posture, which eliminates such minor figure worries as a dowager's cushion or a double chin. However, the type has its figure problems, and you may be concerned over excess flesh on the back of the upper arm; a tendency to develop breadth through the middle —and hips.

The most serviceable exercises use the large muscles of the body. The stretching exercises are invaluable for the prevention or correction of a thickened waistline, and the abdominal and hip exercises give your figure contour control. All outdoor activities are beneficial and will help you to keep your vitality at a high level.

New Prints for Race Days

FOR A REAL dyed-in-the-wool thrill among summer fashions, we give you challis in Tyrolean prints and colors! This sheer and fine woolen, cool and light against the skin, captured Fashion Congress favor and a black-and-silver tag with just one turn before the judges at the horseshoe table. Grand for either race days or town wear. Colors are intense yet mellow, true to peasant inspiration, and with an intent to flatter that more highly civilized shades just don't have! For instance, the mellow-intense green challis, left, printed with tiny sun-orange flowers and tied with a matching sash, heightened Miss Natalie Folsom's tan into a lovely warm glow. The neckline is high and tight, gathering up bodice fullness. A concealed closing buttons up the frock from chin to hem. Black-ground challis particularly chic for a town frock.

For shopping information on either challis or repe-and-linen, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, Liberty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American.

Chaplin on Way Home—To Retire

Hollywood, May 8 (U.S.)—From the romantic Orient, Charlie Chaplin heads home today—to Hollywood and retirement.

The master of cinema-comic pantomime, the comely Paulette Goddard and her mother, Mrs. Alta Coddard, are leaving Hong Kong after a jaunt through sun-kissed Eastern seas.

And Chaplin said, according to dispatches from Hongkong:

"It is quite probable I will retire permanently from acting. I am writing a new scenario for Paulette, but I am not going to act in it."

If Chaplin does carry out his plan to retire, it was pointed out here, it will mean that his latest picture, "Modern Times," in which Miss Goddard was his leading lady, writes finis to one of the most brilliant of all motion picture careers.

Help Mother On Her Day Is Advice

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WMEX

The day has come again for all good children to put mothers out of the kitchens and turn to and prepare the meals for Sunday.

There'll probably be a few burnt fingers and maybe a few burned foods—but it will be a real treat to mother to escape the responsibility of family meals if only for a day.

Plan a menu of bright spring foods and make an occasion of Mothers' Day.

Chilled Tomato Juice with Tomato Olive Cubes
Roast Spring Lamb
Parslied New Potatoes
Asparagus, Lemon Butter
Mint Ice Hot Rolls
Bowl of Salad Greens
Rhubarb Upside-Down Cake
Coffee

CHILLED TOMATO JUICE WITH TOMATO OLIVE CUBES

Pour tomato juice into shallow freezing tray of refrigerator containing the cube divider. When it is frozen to the mushy state, insert a stuffed Spanish olive in center of each cube, having red tip of olive protruding. Freeze until very firm. Place a cube in each glass of chilled tomato juice and serve at once.

RHUBARB UPSIDE-DOWN CAKE

1 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
3 eggs
2 cups sifted cake flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2-3 cup milk
1½ cups brown sugar
1 lb. raw diced rhubarb
1 cup whipping cream

Cream the shortening thoroughly, then blend in the sugar. Add the beaten egg yolks. Mix and sift the dry ingredients and add alternately with the milk to the creamed mixture. Add vanilla and carefully fold in the egg whites, which have been beaten until stiff but not dry. Cover the bottom of a greased cake pan with the brown sugar, then add the diced rhubarb, and cover it with the cake batter. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 50 minutes. Remove and turn upside down on a large plate. Serve with whipped cream.

Imaginative Defense in Bridge

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Much has been said about the right way for declarer to play the type of hand in which his only hope of making his contract is to find everything "right."

The same principle, of course, applies to the defenders. In many hands, the imaginative player experiences no great trouble in determining what specific cards his partner needs if the contract is to be defeated.

Then he must play as though his partner held those cards. West found a way to defeat an apparently safe contract by following that principle.

North, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ Q J 7 2 ♡ A Q J 10 ◇ A J 10 8 ♣ 8
♠ 8 6 ♡ 7 5 2 ◇ K 4 ♣ A K J 10 5 3	North West East South	♠ A 9 ♡ 9 8 4 3 ◇ Q 9 5 ♣ 9 6 4 2
	♠ K 10 5 4 ♡ K 8 ◇ 8 5 3 2 ♣ Q 7

The bidding.

North	East	South	West
1 ♡ (1)	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♣
3 ♠ (2)	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

(1) The best opening bid North is prepared to raise a spade or diamond take-out and will rebid two diamonds over two clubs.

(2) An overbid based on the supposition that whatever strength South had was not apt to be in clubs and therefore would be of value.

West opened the King of clubs and upon seeing the dummy, indulged in a bit of thought before making his next lead. His King of diamonds was worthless unless his partner held the Queen and there was the chance he could obtain the third round diamond ruff if his partner had the Queen of diamonds and could get in before two rounds of trumps had been drawn.

With the courage born of desperation therefore, West led the King of diamonds, dummy won with the Ace and returned a low trump, and it was then East's turn to think.

The King of diamonds had quite obviously been led with the intention of obtaining a ruff. It was most unlikely that West had more than two trumps. This made it imperative for East to win with his Ace of trumps without delay. He thereupon cashed his Queen of diamonds and gave his partner a diamond ruff to defeat the contract.

Success in Love

What would they think if some one could magically produce a phonograph record of the things they said to each other during courtship?

It wouldn't sound much like the peevishness and bickering of these future family rows.

Little by little the blissful ways of new love have changed to the commonplace, or the unendurable. Something precious has been destroyed.

Love is lost by nagging, selfishness, deep differences of temperament and taste, coldness, possessiveness, jealousy, petty distrust, ill health, neglect of the attentions. Even a prosaic matter like failing to budget the household expenses has wrecked many a fair start.

Your own love problem looms up like a mountain before you. Yet it has happened to many others besides you. Modern psychology has thrown a great, revealing light on the whys of many needless heart-aches.

Don't let your life grow bitter and empty. Find out what the straight thinking minds of today have to say of your difficulties. Our 40-page illustrated booklet, SUCCESS IN LOVE AND MARRIAGE, tells vivid stories of the life problems of others, and offers many helpful solutions of troubles as vexing as your own.

Send 15c for our booklet, SUCCESS IN LOVE AND MARRIAGE, to Boston Evening American, Home Institute, 109 West 19th Street New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

All Readers Should Join In Universal Tribute To Our Mothers

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Sunday is Mother's Day. Make it HER day.

If Mother is living, buy a gift for her. Of course, she knows you love her. All mothers do. But a bouquet of flowers, candy or a potted plant will make her about the happiest woman in the world.

And if mother is dead, visit her grave. Place a spray or wreath upon it. Let her memory be with you throughout the day. In Heaven she will smile. I know she will.

As I write of Mother, this beautiful letter comes to me from one of our column friends who lives about 50 miles from Boston. And while I read it, my heart overflowing with pity for this poor woman, I resolved to send her the five-dollar award for today. It will be my Mother's Day gift to her.

This is what she tells me:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Two days after Christmas we lost our little girl. She was just two. We were returning from a visit to my husband's folks and had a terrible auto accident. I was not hurt badly. All I needed were 11 stitches in my head, but the accident destroyed me. I can never be a mother now.

I was an orphan before, but in an instant I knew the pain of a love I had never felt. I really can not tell how much I missed my baby. We had been five years after our marriage and hers were the happiest days of my life.

But now she is gone. I have nothing left to look forward to. The dreams and plans I had made are gone and broken, and life doesn't seem worthwhile now.

It is I realize, sinful to question the will of God. But why couldn't He have left my baby with me? She was mine every thing in the world to me.

My grief is such that I can not be in the house alone. Every where I see her pretty clothes calling me. I find myself going from room to room looking for her. It doesn't seem possible that she is gone.

I have lost 20 pounds since I put my little girl in the baby white coffin, never to see her again. Perhaps I shall join her. There is joy in the thought.

I am writing to you, Miss Fairfax, because I have confidence in your advice. Please give me a word of comfort.

MOMMIE

DEAR MOMMIE:

Your baby went home in the infinite purity of childhood's low freed from cares and sorrows of the world she is with God. Of that you can be sure.

Life is short, dear Mommie. None of us live long. A darkened years is but a moment's span with the great age of the world. Many die young. A few old. Still none stay long on earth. Eternity awaits us all. Fortunate indeed are those whom God calls home in the serenity of childhood.

That is my belief. I have cherished it many years. And it has taught me to know that the dear ones I, too, have lost are waiting for me and you and everyone in the deathless Paradise.

My advice to you is to adopt a baby girl. Take her to your heart. Love her as your own. That is the thing to do.

Our column friends will help you, for somewhere there is just a baby girl whose mother is unable to care properly for her baby, will give the child to your arms.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I read your column today. I happened to see Miss C.'s letter. Well, Miss Perfect, don't you think Mrs. C. ought to be treated very thoroughly? I do and I hope she gets what she wishes to be a baby sister in June or January will not wait for a man of three qualities to come along. If she does she will be extremely lucky.

I never read such a lot of nonsense in my life as I. M. and feel foolish to have wasted two cents. If you were Mrs. C. you'd tell her husband to go to the devil and keep the money.

I'm sorry if I have hurt Miss C.'s feelings, but I want to get it off my chest. Please print this as I feel it PEARL.

JUST A MAN

DEAR FRIEND:

Thank you for your letter. You feel better now, don't you?

Personally, I rather liked Mrs. C.'s letter. She is sincere and knows what she wants. And, after all, we are entitled to [illegible]

Most of us could use your letter. [illegible] Thanks for it. I am sure it will help [illegible] to write you.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am the oldest in my family and I am a so quite lame. My father is most unfair to me. All I have for every thing wrong me. Brothers and sisters do as they like to me. I'm so tired I am constantly being whipped.

Please advise me what to do.

UNHAPPY

DEAR CHILD:

[illegible] child. I am [illegible] Mother [illegible] I know [illegible] you [illegible] Mother [illegible] Mother [illegible] Mother

Communists Charge Plot by Jews

Who and what are behind the bloody attacks on the Jewish colonists in Palestine where the reign of terror with many casualties is now in its third week.

In a series of articles, Isaac Don Levine will present the facts surrounding the Communist policy to promote civil war in Palestine. The sixth article follows.

ARTICLE SIX

The following editorial appeared in the Jewish Daily Forward of New York for April 29, 1936.

The "Freiheit" (Jewish Communist newspaper) explains the pogrom proclamations issued by the Communists in Palestine. It no longer denies them. It explains and justifies them.

In these proclamations, distributed in the midst of the pogrom, the Communists declare that the Jews were the ones who perpetrated the pogrom against the Arabs, that the Jewish self-defense had plotted the bloody attacks, and that the Arabs were therefore invited by the Communists to put an end to Jewish rule and to stop Jewish immigration.

The "Freiheit" of last Sunday therefore asks: "Must the Jewish and Arab Communists remain silent?" And "what is there wrong about appealing to the Jewish youth to unite with the Arabs in the struggle against British imperialism and Zionist attacks?"

This is an occasion for congratulations. First of all, we congratulate the Communists at last they have spoken the truth!

In the second place, we "congratulate" the Jews: At last we have our own pogrom instigators!

And perhaps our readers will permit us to congratulate ourselves: At last we have driven the Communists to a point where they are compelled to confess their share in the Palestinian pogroms!

Our readers will recall that after the pogrom of 1929, Forward charged that the Communists had a hand in it. Our correspondent in Palestine unearthed a document which contained the names of Arab leaders and Jewish Communists who had organized the massacre of that year. But the Communists here denied it most emphatically. The question remained open.

It was not an open question for us, for we were convinced by the evidence in our possession, but it was an open question for other Jewish circles. But we did not let up. We bombarded the same target all these years. We subjected the Communists to a ceaseless "third degree."

Six years we tugged at their nerves until finally they did what all criminals usually do. Their nerves gave way. They confessed to the crime.

But last winter, in connection with the Communist proclamations in Palestine on the occasion of the discovery of the mysterious shipment of weapons, the local Communists played innocent and cried:

"What, we who have abolished pogroms in Soviet Russia are accused of inciting them in Palestine? It is a frame-up! It is a plant by our enemies!"

Yet the Communists of Palestine confessed to their act at that time. But what about the argument that there are no pogroms in Soviet Russia? Well, the Communists forgot to mention that Soviet Russia is not the only such country in the world.

There are no pogroms in Great Britain, France, Czechoslovakia, the Scandinavian countries, and in our own America. But this is merely incidental.

The question then remains—why are pogroms prohibited in Russia by the very Communists who organize them in Palestine?

The question of Communist guilt in the Palestinian bloodshed has been closed and sealed by their own admissions. Of greater importance is the new question raised by the Communists:

"What is there wrong" about inciting pogroms? "Must the Jewish and Arab Communists remain silent?"

We must confess: It is a brilliant question, if only because of its great simplicity. There is nothing new about pogroms. But their perpetrators in the past always sought to mask their incitements and to evade their responsibility.

The Czar tried to conceal his sponsorship of pogroms. Even Hitler has forbidden open pogroms so as not to disgrace Germany. It simply never occurred to him to announce: "What is there to be ashamed of? What is there wrong about inciting a pogrom?"

We recall the affair of 1929 when the Communists gave their blessing to the Arab pogroms. How aroused Jewish public opinion was then! Now that we have their confession, shall we permit our pro-socialist spokesmen to fraternize with them?

What has happened to us in these six years? What is the cause of our demoralization? We often wonder how it is possible that in Nazi Germany the better people do not burst out in protest against the Nazi misdeeds.

We now see that such a condition is possible in our own midst. Is it conceivable that the Communists have pogromized our social conscience here, just as the Nazis have pogromized the social and spiritual organism of Germany?

DEAL WARNED OF MAD SPLURGE

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

ROBERT E. ROGERS

At a recent meeting of the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs at Atlantic City, one of the ladies made one of those easy generalizations which every speaker not sticking to the book is likely to make, but which is particularly irritating to others who think differently.

"Education should be the main interest of club women, because the home has failed."

One is tempted to make a quick and easy answer; that if the home has failed the club women are largely responsible. Although such a remark has long been one of the stand-bys of the comic writers, yet a careful observation particularly within a certain not-too-limited circle of society, what might be called the club-woman caste, will show that the comic writers are not merely being comic.

Absentee Mothers Bad for Homes

One has no criticism of the activities of middle-aged women whose children are grown up, but when adolescents of high school age will confess that their mothers are largely absentee and leave them pretty much to manage their own affairs, particularly their social life, one feels that these women are doing their very best to contribute to the failure of the American home.

The more one observes the activities and the home training of these women who belong definitely to the club-woman caste (and I could name quite a number of these women, offhand) the more one is inclined to think that the children of the decent poor, whose mothers have no social or uplift aspirations, probably get a much better home training and discipline and a far more practical home life.

My own point of view is plain and simple: that the woman who knows specifically under what conditions her children are going to the movies is a more useful mother than the woman who is away from home a good deal of the time campaigning for the reform of the movies. That kind of mother probably knows less about what her children are doing than the mother whose ideas about movies may be quite tolerant and undiscriminating but who at least doesn't let her children run loose.

Heads Everything But Her Family

I once knew a college professor's wife who was never at home. Her small children were little hellions in every sense of the word. I understand that as they grow up they are still more unmanageable. The woman is the head and front of every fashionable, cultural, high-brow organization in her city. They are making America over. And her children would be a disgrace to the worst kind of slum tenement.

I have no objection to the proposition that club women should be interested in education, provided that they do not try to run the schools and inject into them all their favorite isms and prejudices. From what I see of parent-teachers' associations today I am inclined to believe that their chief intention is to encourage the parents to interfere with the schools and encourage the teachers to interfere with the home. The shoemakers are no longer interested in sticking to their lasts.

Club Women Should Have Occupation

But I do deny utterly and heartily that club women should occupy themselves with the schools because the home has failed. It is not true. Even if it were true, organization work would not help the situation.

The only thing that will make the American home a more efficient, unified, disciplinary, and home-centered institution is the kind of steady, patient, continuous, consistent management of the home by parents who are not all the time either attending club meetings or playing golf.

More parents in the home more of the time! Let that be the slogan, and we shall not be hearing so much of this condescending theoretical talk by well-to-do women, to the effect that the common American home has failed. Particularly would I risk betting on that home in comparison with the home of the youngish college-bred woman who has delusions of grandeur.

Classmates for Four Years, But Meet for First Time

RUTH McGRATH — NURSE HELEN M. RAMSDEN — NURSE CHRISTINA BATISTA — MARJORIE FORD

Ruth McGrath of Copeland street, Quincy, and Marjorie Ford of South Central avenue, Wollaston, discovered today that they are classmates. Each girl is 19 years old, and although they have both been going to Quincy sennor high, they met each other for the first time in the Quincy City Hospital, where they are recovering from appendicitis operations. They are shown with their nurses. The group consists of Ruth, Nurse Helen M. Ramsden, Nurse Batista and Marjorie.

MOTHER CUTS HER THROAT

Her windpipe partially severed, Mrs. Michilena Garvus, 57, of Levant street, Dorchester, mother of three children, was taken to City Hospital today.

According to the police, Mrs. Garvus locked herself in the bathroom and cut her throat with a razor.

Her daughter, Martha, 24, heard her fall to the floor. She summoned her father, John

After entering the bathroom by scaling a ladder up to the window, he summoned the police

Schoolmates Meet in Ward

Although they had been classmates in the same school for four years, Ruth McGrath, 19, of Copeland st., Quincy, and Marjorie Ford, 19, of South Central ave., Wollaston, met each other today for the first time—in the Quincy City Hospital today.

Both girls are recovering after appendicitis operations, performed last Tuesday within an hour of each other

They found out they went to some classes together, but neither could remember having seen the other.

The two girls will graduate together next month

Senate to Get Treaty Next Week

Washington, May 8 (AP)—The new London naval treaty may be submitted to the Senate early next week.

President Roosevelt told newsmen today it was likely the treaty would go to the Senate at that time.

He did not say, however, that he would urge ratification at this session, which only has a few more weeks to run.

HOPKINS DENIES OUSTING OF SIX

As six Works Progress Administration officials found themselves jobless today because of their participation in state politics, Harry L. Hopkins, national administrator, denied in Washington that they had been discharged.

Hopkins' statement was made after Representative John W. McCormack of Boston protested yesterday's action of State Administrator Paul Edwards had previously announced the dismissal of six men because of their candidacy as delegates to the state Democratic convention.

In making his announcement, Edwards had said that his action was in line with Hopkins' order that prohibited Works Progress Administration employes to take part in politics

In Washington McCormack quoted Hopkins as saying that Works Progress Administration workers [illegible] a part of [illegible] was fired.

Hopkins said that the six men reported dismissed would not be discharged. The men dismissed yesterday included three from Boston, and one each from Cambridge, Natick, and Allerton. The report that two had been dismissed in Salem was later learned to be erroneous

Spending 10 And Half Billion

BIG WPA BILL IS SPEEDED

Washington, May 8 (INS)—Warned that appropriations this session may reach the staggering total of $10,500,000,000, House Democrats today appeared ready to adopt President Roosevelt's relief program.

Leaders believed the chief obstacle to approval of the $1,-425,000,000 Works Progress Administration fund sought by Mr. Roosevelt was removed when a Democratic caucus refused to approve earmarking of $700,000,000 for the Public Works Administration.

The caucus was started when Buchanan (D.), Texas, chairman of the appropriations committee, asserted if appropriation bills were passed as indicated the session's total would be $10,500,000,000.

"I believe the time has come when the Democratic Party, in justice to the country and to itself, must retrench," said Buchanan.

Bloc to Fight

The second deficiency bill, which carries a total of $2,264,000,000 and includes the WPA fund, was expected to be put in final shape today for a vote Monday.

The PWA bloc, after losing in an effort to bind Democrats in caucus to support a $700,000,000 WPA program under Secretary of Interior Ickes, planned to offer an amendment for a $350,000,000 PWA fund on the House floor.

The vote in the caucus was 53 for PWA and 70 against, with some not voting and more than half the Democrats absent. Representative Better (D.), of New York, leader of the PWA forces said leaders blocked votes for lesser PWA amounts. He stated:

"The caucus action will aid us because the steam roller methods used by the leaders made votes for our side."

Representative Pankhead, Alabama, Democratic leader, told the caucus the administration hoped to continue PWA through loans from [illegible]

Changes Sought

As the House again plunged into the relief fight, many amendments revising the administration relief program were proposed. They included:

Marcantonio's amendment raising [illegible]

Amendment by Representative Connery (D.), Massachusetts, to [illegible]

Hundreds of cases of fraud and [illegible] in connection with federal relief funds were brought to light officially as a belligerent House rocked under the enormous task of appropriating the huge sum.

A. church, Home for the Aged and others.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Marjorie McBride

MARJORIE McBRIDE

Rockport Lodge is being readied for another season. It's a 200-year-old farmhouse in the town of Rockport. Under the auspices of the Massachusetts League of Girls' Clubs, it has been converted into a comfortable camp

There, hundreds of girls on slender incomes vacation each summer, paying moderate prices for outings that would cost them much more elsewhere. Before the regular vacation season opens in June, there are week-end parties at the lodge, the first to be held this week.

The League was founded by Miss Edith M. Howes of Brookline in 1888. There were few women in business or the professions then, and those few were regarded as rather peculiar. Higher education for women was rare and difficult. The league offered courses in painting china, elocution and embroidery. When the colleges started courses for women, the league dropped its extension courses and concentrated on the vacation camp.

Main Building Once Rural Mansion

Besides the main building, which used to be a mansion in rural setting, there are a gymnasium and smoking lodge on the grounds.

The girls decide on the policy of the lodge, even regulating the prices and suggesting improvements. Church services, settlement groups, the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. are taking advantage of the place. The week-end parties are co-educational. The league provides the chaperones. Distinctly, the lodge is not a charitable organization. Prices allow for running expenses. Swimming, golfing, horseback riding, tennis and a number of indoor sports are among the attractions.

A good many socially important people are patronesses. Among them are Miss Marion Miles of Wellesley, Miss Eleanor W. Allen, Mrs. Eva Whiting White, Katherine F. Wellman of Topsfield, Louise Condit of Bass Rock, and Miss Muriel Haynes of Weston.

The more unusual the task, the better they like it.

Mickey Mouse Float Unique Contrivance

That Mickey Mouse float that has been sailing around town is the ingenious contrivance of Wilfred E. Jordan, architect. He made it for the ladies' committee in charge of the New England Medical Center's benefit pop concert on Monday evening.

The model for the Queen of Symphony was a woman relative of Serge Koussevitsky. The King of Jazz is Paul Whiteman, and the Crown Prince, Arthur Fiedler. The beach wagon loaned for the float is the property of Mrs. Charles C. Cabot of Dover.

The float will be out again tomorrow, for the last time. Socialites who are driving it include Pauline Erlich, Helen Jackson, Louise Stevens and Marion Lawrence. Miss Lawrence will appear as Queen of the Mardi Gras at the concert.

Harvard Divorces Yale Boxers Because 'We-Wuz-Robbed'

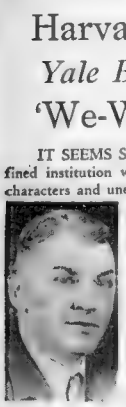
IT SEEMS STRANGE THAT Harvard, a refined institution which is generally freer of smelly characters and uneducated no-goods than the professional prize ring, should be stirring up a we-wuz-robbed clamor against Yale's boxing team and suggesting, in a genteel way, that Yale is guilty of the pugilistic larcenies which have come to be familiar routine on the commercial side of the nauseous science.



Austen Lake

Being more polite than the alley people and therefore less spontaneous in matters of uproar, Harvard let off no anguished yells on the March night when Yale's boxers were reported to have given it the business. When Yale, though licked according to the contract rules, contrived to get nothing worse than a 4-4 draw by figuring the problem in arithmetic, Harvard did not reach for any ringside microphones to broadcast its squawk, merely submitting to what seemed less of a boxing victory for Yale than a triumph for its mathematical scholarship, and proved that the pencil is mightier than a bust on the chin.

No! Harvard did not holler "police" over a National network, like Yussel Jacobs did on the 1932 evening when Jack Sharkey flogged Max Schmeling loose from his heavyweight title. By contrast with Harvard, Yussel was just an uncouth vulgarian who figured that the time to set the wild echoes flying was not two months later, but while the occasion to squawk was still fresh.

ALL-AMERICAN SQUAWK

HAVING BEEN AMONG THOSE who sat under the apron of the ring when Yussel made his immortal remark, I recall hearing Graham McNamee, the radio word artist who was rounding up celebrities to breathe a few tactful nothings into the hookup, ask Jacobs whether he cared to mention a few remarks.

"Yes," said Yussel, clamping his tusks on his cigar, "I will say a remark."

And he did. Taking a throat-hold on the nuke and sneezing forked jets of tobacco smoke right into his electric eye, he bawled, "We wuz robbed." And immediately a brawl started for control of the instrument with everybody clawing and screaming inarticulate murder, and above all Yussel's strident squawl, "We wuz robbed . . . we wuzaaawwk." Failing to wrestle the nuke away, the attendants settled the matter by folding their fingers around the little man's throat, like boy ball-players choosing up sides on a bat, so that while his mouth still worked, no sound came out.

But Harvard, in Yussel's situation, just sat down morbidly to examine its indignation, item by item, and after some months of meditation decided to omit Yale when the next boxing calendar went to the printer.

Refined people do things that way. You don't spit like the Sumner Pingrees and Bayard Tuckermans call in a bar-bouncer if some guest gets soused and rides to hounds in the ball room, do you? No, sir! They ink his name off the social blotter and when they throw another shindig, just forget to mail him notice.

PRO FIGHTERS PHILOSOPHICAL

BY DOING THIS HARVARD implies that Yale wished less to see the contests decided on the pure, impartial beauties of the bouts, as it desired to hand Harvard boxers a licking. So Harvard felt, in the ends of justice, it could not expose its kids to people who, however cultured, were brothers under the skin with the smelly fight rabble, who, if anything, were more virtuous in their sins for being more candid about them.

This is a reversed policy to that of the rowdy, professional ringsters, where the boys stomach every savage knock to reach the fist, elbow, thumb, skull and glove-lace as heir, and hemstitch their wounds to try it over again. And, do the ring judges come up with a sour decision, the fighters do their screaming under impulse of pain and sign to fight another installment.

So, when Jack Sharkey came out of his cotton wool and got the gaff from the fight officials on the November night of his first meeting with Tony Shucco, he lost no time in brooding, but returned to take another harpooning.

MONEY VS. GLORY

PRO FIGHTERS SELDOM WASTE remorse. After the first of the Dempsey-Tunney fights, there was the story that unscrupulous persons had poisoned the cream which Dempsey swallowed for breakfast before the big business. And as recently as Louisville, where I sat with Dempsey watching preliminary races to the Derby, he claimed that his licking came less from Tunney's right hand busts than the vast equatorial aches which he carried around the ring.

The prospect of somebody heaving another handful of distress into his chicken gumbo did not deter Dempsey from signing articles for another go with Tunney. And though, in this one, he was victim of a stretchy count after having Tunney in a twilight state, he would have signed again.

But the professional fighter makes money in proportion to the volumn of public argument, while the college fighter gets nothing but the pleasure of occasional victory and a selfless, sacrificial feeling for his school. So that Harvard feels, when its kids are deprived by adult monkey business from the fruits of their sufferings, the time to stop is now.

Ken Weafer Sold to Bees

CLUB Home for 13 TILTS

DODGERS HERE TOMORROW

By Bill Grimes

It was Give and Take Day yesterday for the Bees.

They gave the Chicago Cubs the final game of their short series and took a thorough raking over from Manager Bill McKechnie for their inability to protect a two-run lead going into the ninth inning.

Then, they gave Jonny Babich, the ailing pitcher, over to the care of a specialist who guarantees a cure and took Ken Weafer, who is now rated as the country's leading college pitcher. He is a recent Cub castoff.

Realizing that Bill McKechnie has seen all the poor pitching that it is humanly possible to endure, I've a hunch that Charlie Grimm or somebody connected with the Chicago Cubs picked one of those things when Ken Weafer was released.

Bill McKechnie is not picking up any dead wood. The guy is a pitcher, when he leaves this league or that major. He gave Weafer a very careful trial and before offering the Auburn Flash a berth.

SORE ELBOW

Babich will remain in Chicago for a week or 10 day. He has been troubled with a sore elbow all spring and has not pitched an inning for the Bees. Weafer is with the Bees, who are now Cleveland and due to arrive here early this evening.

Ken Weafer started baseball at Wilkinsburg, Pa., [illegible] Combs, another of Duke University's who gave up baseball for the Athletics, but his coach recommended a tip that Ken Weafer would be a valuable adjunct to baseball at Duke.

Ken was schooled as a pitcher by two older brothers, Harland Roland Yeats ago. He pitched for the Chicago Cubs and spent a few seasons managing clubs in the Piedmont League. Rollie, after winding up his college career at Boston University, joined the Philadelphia Athletics.

During his five years at Duke Ken Weafer pitched one ball game and was rated as [illegible] among the [illegible] 300 pitchers. He went out to Catalina Island, with the Cubs in spring after turning down an offer from the Red Sox.

Ken Weafer is a right hander, stands about six feet and weighs 185 pounds.

BREAK EVEN

After breaking even in 10 road games, the Bees are now scheduled for 13 games at the National League Field. They open a three-game series with the Brooklyn Dodgers tomorrow, after which they will take on Pittsburgh, St. Louis Cubs and Cincinnati.

Then they will make their second swing around the Eastern circuit following which they will be home for a double header Memorial Day with the Phillies.

The Bees dropped the one game played with the Giants but they took both games from the Cincinnati Reds and broke even with the Pirates. Then, they swung one of the biggest upsets of the season by winning two out of three games from the Cards in St. Louis, after which they were simply outclicked by the Cubs in the Windy City.

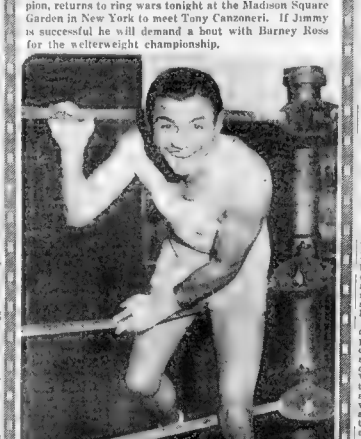
After trailing 6 to 3 yesterday going into the 7th, the Bees staged one of their famous rallies and took over an 8 to 6 lead in the 8th. The Cubs tied up the game in the 9th and won it in the 10th, when the Bees' pitchers failed to stand up under pressure.

By winning five road games, the Bees equaled the 1935 season record of the Braves and made a very favorable impression with the Western fans, not to mention the Western clubs, especially St. Louis and Cincinnati.

Small Men, Big Punch

SOUTHERN IN BATTLE

JIMMY McLARNIN, former world's welterweight champion, returns to ring wars tonight at the Madison Square Garden in New York to meet Tony Canzoneri. If Jimmy is successful he will demand a bout with Barney Ross for the welterweight championship.



TONY CANZONERI, lightweight champion, gives away 12 pounds to fight McLarnin tonight but if he should beat Jimmy, Tony will also go after Ross as the veteran title holder has ambitions of becoming a double champion. Tonight tells the story.

MATCHES TODAY

Southern vs. Midland at Brae Burn.
Central at The Country Club.
Northern vs. Middlesex at Concord.

After losing its first four matches, the Midland District suddenly turned on Northern and Middlesex and today is out to make the pacemaking Southern District its third straight victim at the Brae Burn Country Club.

The Women's Golf Association of Massachusetts district teams are playing off the sixth round, which was postponed because of wet weather.

Along with the Midland Southern matches at Brae Burn, The Country Club is playing Central at Brookline and Northern and Middlesex are at the Concord Country Club.

CHOICE FAILS

Although pre-season ratings had Midland a favorite, Mrs. Brad Whittemore, its captain, was unable to get her team into a winning stride. It just didn't seem able to put across that odd point ad a re sult lost to Southern, Middlesex Central and The Country Club.

One week ago yesterday, Midland [illegible] through with its first victory, a smashing 7 to 2 win over Northern and yesterday was equally as ruthless with Middlesex. Middlesex is now in fourth place and although it has won two less matches than Southern it has scored only one less point than the leaders.

Midland will make a real race of the district team match championship by defeating Southern today, especially in the event that the second-place Country Club team comes through and beats Central. Victories by Midland and The Country Club would move the Brookline aggregation into a first-place tie with Southern, jump Midland into a third position deadlock with Central and the winner of the Northern-Middlesex tilt.

The Central District made a fine bid to pull Southern back into the race yesterday but the lower half of its team did not have the necessary punch to produce the extra point, three of the last four players yielding to one-sided defeats.

N. U. vs. B. C.

Northeastern freshmen play host to the B. C. yearling nine tomorrow afternoon at Huntington Field, Brookline. This is the most important clash of the season for the young Huskies.

Italian Outweighed Gamblers Active

By Jack Conway

New York, May 8—Jimmy McLarnin today ruled an 8 to 5 betting favorite to win from Tony Canzoneri in their ten-round bout in the New York Garden tonight.

The speculative element is of the opinion that McLarnin will carry too much tonnage into the ring for Canzoneri. Jimmy will have more than ten pounds in weight in his favor.

There is a great deal of McLarnin money around. As a result the former world a welterweight champion is likely to be a 2 to 1 choice by ring time.

It is expected that 19,000 persons will jam the Garden to see McLarnin and Canzoneri in action. It will be the first time in several years that a Garden boxing promotion has sold out.

The Louis-Paulino bout jammed the Garden last December but that match was staged by the 20th Century Club.

The fact that McLarnin is Irish and Canzoneri Italian has served to add interest to the match. Down through the years bouts between standout Irish and Italian boxers have always made a wide appeal to the fans. Some of the best bouts have been a great deal of er has been battling a standout Irish or Italian punch finger.

Canzoneri cannot lose his world's lightweight championship tonight as title of the late McLarnin will enter the ring over the lightweight limit of 135 pounds.

McLarnin is a better puncher than Canzoneri and the latter's experience will not offset this, it will be because he has been more active in the ring than his heavier opponent.

McLarnin Outweighs Canzoneri by 6½ Pounds

New York, May 8 (AP)—Jimmy McLarin, former world's welterweight champion, will have have a big and one-half pounds weight advantage tonight over lightweight champion Tony Canzoneri in their ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden. McLarin will weigh 143; Canzoneri, 136½.

'OSTY' Sent After SOLONS

RED SOX OPEN IN CAPITAL

By Joe Cashman

Washington, D. C., May 6—A left-hander for breakfast, a southpaw for lunch and a portsider for dinner is the pitching menu Manager Joe Cronin had arranged for the Senators as his league-leading Red Sox opened a three-game series with "Bucky" Harris' Capitol crew here this afternoon.

It will be "Fritz" Ostermueller, seeking his third win, this p. m., George "Babe" Walberg, after his initial victory, on the morrow and Robert Moses Grove, trying for his sixth straight triumph, on Sunday.

Boy, Joe, you see remembered what happened when the Solons visited Boston for a four-game engagement.

The Sox took three of the four tilts and each decision gave Red was provided with a fork and temptingly chilled spoon. Two were to date in that series and Grove aspired for no less.

"We may not be as fortunate this time," remarked the Fenway foreman, "but percentage calls for a steady left-handed diet for the Senators while they have Myer, Leslo, Stone, Kuhel, Travis and Bolton, all left-handed sticklers, in the lineup."

SEASON DEBUT

This series marks the season's first appearance of our free-hitting pace-setters in Washington and also the start of the first long road trip of the campaign.

After leaving here our heroes will embark on their initial invasion of the West being booked for three games in Detroit, two in Cleveland, three in Chicago and two in St. Louis.

They start out a first place but by a margin of only a half game over the Yanks. If they can return home still on the roof, they'll be definitely established as the 1938 pennant favorites.

Taking these series from the White Sox, one out of two from the Indians and two out of three from both the Tigers and Yankees, they compiled the best record against a Western invasion of any Fens aggregation in the memory of the oldest inhabitant.

They can hardly be expected to be as successful out in the enemy country, but there's every reason to believe that they'll do as well as the Yanks and that these two clubs will increase their lead over the rest of the field.

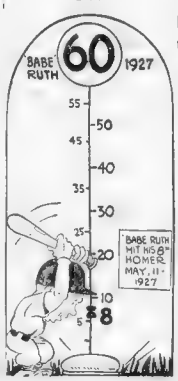
DOUBLE X FOR RUTH



JIMMY FOXX by clouting two home runs yesterday reached a total of eight to date. Ruth did not hit his eighth until May 11, the year he belted 60 to break his own record. Jimmy is now after that mark and is off to a great start.

RUTH'S Record PERILED

SOX STAR 4 DAYS AHEAD

By Will Connell

James the Great also was waiting a chance to cash in on his current slugging streak, and knit a couple more rows in the home run record shawl he hopes can be finished by October.

The Red Sox first baseman is first in the hearts of local baseball fans, outside of the two honors to clip wrap up the Brown series and run the Sox string to four straight.

NOT EASY

The latter feat isn't as well within reach as you might think. For the 12th Jimmy is four days ahead of Ruth's record drive he will only hit 46 homers at the present rate of travel.

The Brownie series finale was the 22nd game of the year, just one seventh of the season, and Foxx must step if he is to set any marks. There's one good omen—Jimmy was not hitting up to his standard for the opening stretch. Now he is riding high, and on the western trip which was to open today he may jump ahead of Ruth's record.

But how does Foxx get the power into his batting that makes him the hardest right handed hitter of the present day? One small muscle tells the story, or rather, the tape-measure tells when it shows his deltoid muscles are 18 inches around.

"Those deltoid muscles," says Trainer Doc Logan of the Sox, "are remarkably big. Jimmy's arms are stronger than most big leaguers, but the deltoids are the most powerful I've ever seen. He says he developed by heavy farm work while a youngster. If that's the secret, I'd recommend it to anyone."

BIG ARMS

His wrists are 7 inches, forearms 13½ inches, biceps 12 inches relaxed and 15½ extended. He has a 42½-inch chest relaxed and a trifle more than three inches expansion.

His waist at 33 1/2 inches, and his weight 182 pounds are less than at any time for the past two or three seasons.

"I'm in better shape than for a long time," remarked Jimmy after the Browns' windup. "And now I'm starting to hit the way I want to. I hope to murder the ball from now on."

When you read claims about cigars . . . of this and that kind of tobacco—just ask yourself these questions.

Why don't these cigars give me some real pleasure in smoking? Why all the rawness and harshness—the bitter, bitey taste—the waste of cigars thrown away half smoked? The answer is this—

GOOD TOBACCOS ARE NOT ENOUGH

All raw tobaccos—even the finest—contain bitter oils and other harsh elements. If these are not removed, they cause harshness, bitterness and bitey taste in cigars.

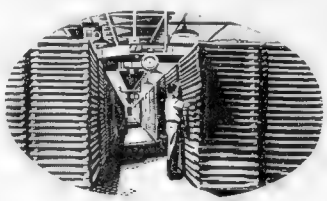
Ordinary methods either fail to take them out—or in doing so, destroy the pure, fine taste of the tobacco. In one case you get bitter, bitey cigars . . . in the other, you get cigars that are flat and insipid.

Bayuk solved this problem. It invented a process that not only removes the harsh, bitter elements from the tobacco, but improves the pure, real tobacco flavor. No other cigar manufacturer uses this process. It is exclusive to Bayuk.

DON'T LET CLAIMS FOOL YOU

Mere claims for a cigar are easy to make—but you can't smoke claims. The real test of a cigar is the pleasure it gives you. Does it please and satisfy your taste?

When you stop to think that PHILLIES pleases the tastes of more men than any other cigar in America—isn't it only reasonable to assume that PHILLIES will please you?



BAYUK'S EXCLUSIVE PROCESS

This picture shows an important unit in the exclusive Bayuk Process for extracting the bitter oils and other harsh elements from the fine tobaccos used in PHILLIES. This Process—covered by patent protection—enables you to enjoy the full flavor of fine tobacco without any bitter, bitey, harsh taste. Bayuk invites you to visit the factory and see this process in operation.

ANN MARSTERS' BEST BETS FOR TODAY

Chalk players, those lads and lassies who play the ponies strictly on form, were moaning high, wide and handsome yesterday at Narragansett. It was especially so after the 2 to 5 choice, MOWER, finished fifth to burn up $25,370.

JACKIE D. was the winner of the fourth, paying $3.60, but as MOWER ran out, our parlay failed to click. We are going into the thirty-second day of the experiment and our bankroll is $495.10.

ANN MARSTERS BETS
$2 Win Beau Thor, Narragansett 2nd.
$2 Win Chance King, Narragansett 6th.

Late Specials
$2 Win Brendard, Churchill 6th.

BANKROLL IS NOW $495.10. DAY'S PLAY $10.

This afternoon I'm betting SPEED in the third at Jamaica, BEAU THOR in the second at Narragansett and CHANCE KING in the sixth at the same track. It's $2 to win on each.

My two late specials are BADGE OF HONOR in the fourth at Pimlico and BRENDARD in the sixth at Churchill Downs.

(At the suggestion of Walter O'Hara, Miss Marsters has set out to determine that conservative bets can result in satisfactory profits, or at worst small losses. Walter O'Hara, Narragansett Park owner, provided the capital with a $1000 gift. Half was turned over to the Boston Evening American Christmas Fund immediately. The remainder will be similarly handled at the end of the experiment. This is the thirty-second day.)

Social Climber Is Mother Of A Bouncing Baby Bay

SECRET Bridal BARED

DR. FREELAND IS FATHER

By Bob Ahearn

Narragansett Park, Pawtucket, R. I., May 8—Weston Adams, Suffolk Downs director, and Horace Wade, announcer at Gansett today were proudly passing out cigars following reports that they were co-owners of a bouncing bay colt.

Adams and Wade are the owners of the sire, and Dr. Harry Freeland, keeper of records at Narragansett, is the owner of the dam, Miss Free and.

This is a double name mixture, probably one that's never duplicated in the annals of horse breeding. Adams and Wade, in addition to being announcers, are also part owners of Narragansett Park.

Dr. Freeland, who is a regular customer at Narragansett, is the owner of Miss Free and.

But the name of the colt changed the minute he arrived, and another at Lonsdale, Rhode Island, and he will be known as Free and Easy.

The Tan Shoes Murder

As Told by Acc Crime Reporters

Maine Slayer of Four Trapped by Shoes Stolen From Victim

This is the 94th in a series of true detective stories from New England police annals being presented daily by the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

By LUTHER CONANT, JR.

that V-8 Feeling makes a world of difference!"

ONE of the lowest priced and most economical cars in the world today stands in a class by itself for sheer performance and driving pleasure. Over two and a half million American motorists have swung to it in less than four years. Over one million chose it in 1935 alone.

That car is the Ford V-8. Now we urge you to drive this great new 1936 Ford V-8 before you decide on any car at any price. We urge you to know for yourself the "feel" of Ford V-8 engine performance, the almost effortless ease of handling—the remarkable stability under all road conditions—the true fine-car riding comfort—which have "taken hold" so quickly and convincingly with the hardest-buying audience that ever tested America's cars. Before you set out to judge modern motor car values, get the "feel" of the one low-price car that's in a class all by itself!

I've seen a lot of articles lately, in newspapers and magazines, warning automobilists not to pick up strangers along the road. Well, sir, today I'm going to warn the strangers not to get too chummy with these doggone automobilists.

FLOYD GIBBONS

And I'm not more than half kidding about that, either, boys and girls. It's a poor rule that won't work both ways, and you can get in just as much of a jam picking up with some bird in a car as the bird in a car can by giving a lift to the guy with the wiggling thumb at the side of the road.

If you don't believe that, listen to the story of Ernest A. Kehr of Richmond Hill, N. Y. Ernie took a ride one time, back in the summer of 1904, with a bird he'd never seen before—and that ride came darned close to being the last one Ernie ever took.

Ernie had been up in Calgary riding wild horses in the Rodeo and was on his way home. He had hiked through Glacier National Park and he was pretty tired, but he was pushing on as fast as he could because he had arranged to meet a friend at a small town in Montana and he didn't want to keep him waiting.

Valier was the name of the town and Ernie was within fifteen miles of it when a man came along driving a brand-new car. The man pulled up beside Ernie and asked him if he wanted a ride. It didn't take much figuring on Ernie's part to decide that this was an easier mode of travel than the "Shanks mare" system he had been following. He climbed into the seat by the driver and they were off.

But Ernie had no more got into that buzz buggy than he began to have his doubts. There was something queer about the driver. He had seemed cordial enough when he had offered Ernie the ride, but there his good will seemed to have ended.

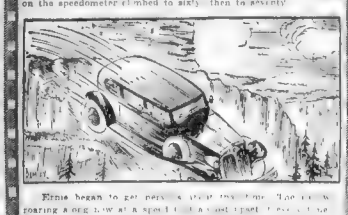
When Ernie passed a casual remark, the fellow ignored it. He kept his eye on the road and the car seemed to be moving faster and faster with every foot they went. They had gone quite a distance before Ernie discovered what the trouble was. His companion was well under the influence of liquor.

* * *

That didn't look so good to Ernie. The fellow was driving faster than was safe even with a sober man at the wheel. By this time he was hitting fifty on a road where a sane driver would not have gone more than thirty—a long, steep downgrade that ran along a sloping mountainside.

The ground fell away on one side of them into a deep mountain gully, and on the other side it rose straight up—a wall cut out of solid rock by the graders who had leveled the roadbed.

The small car balanced about perfectly on the rough uneven road, but that didn't seem to bother the man at the wheel. Instead of slowing down he fed the machine more gas. The needle on the speedometer climbed to sixty, then to seventy.



Ernie began to get panicky about this time. The car was roaring along at a speed that scared Ernie stiff. Then it came to a curve. It was one of those curves that are thoroughly alarming.

Ernie kept his eyes on the driver, watching his every move and ready to spring to action when the driver lost control of the car. It seemed nothing short of a miracle to Ernie that it hadn't gone off the road or smacked into something long before.

* * *

They had gone skidding around a curve on two wheels and had just come to a long straightaway. The road ahead looked smooth and in good condition. For the first time during the ride Ernie felt comparatively safe. He drew in a deep breath and heaved a sigh of relief—let his eyes wander over the landscape for a second. And then it happened.

Says Ernie: "I had no sooner taken my eyes from the man than I saw the car leave the hard road and go off onto a soft shoulder. At the speed we were making that shoulder was fatal. The sudden change of surface severed the wheels of the car and over the side of the mountain we went, the car turning over in the air as it left the ground. The earth seemed to spin about in a dizzy circle for a few seconds and then we crashed to the slope at the bottom of a sheer drop of forty feet.

"We hit the slope with a crash—so hard that the motor of the car was knocked right off the chassis and buried itself in the ground where we struck. But the rest of the car, with both of us in it, continued to roll down the slope at a terrific speed. It rolled over six or eight times and finally crashed into a rock with such force that I went sailing fifty feet through the air. After that I lost consciousness.

* * *

A forty-foot drop [illegible] foot sail through the air [illegible] him, and Ernie was [illegible] teeth—and that's all. And [illegible] tough as those [illegible]

Well, sir, no matter how tough a guy [illegible] body tougher. I wouldn't be at all surprised to get a letter tomorrow from some fellow who could lose as much pin shoot as Ernie—or even more. Maybe you've taken a terrible beating from Old Man Fate or Old Lady Adventure. If you have send in that story. And watch this column for tomorrow's installment of another great adventurer.

In the meantime—TAKE IT EASY.

Clark Gable Again Loses Vacation

Fan Dance Star Tops Bill

By MARION FRENCH

The beauteous Faith Bacon, the original fan dancer, little Jimmy Savo, famous pantomimic comedian, and J. Harold Murray, romantic baritone singer, will be entertaining the RKO-Poston Theater's customers for the next week.

From the way these stars, headliners of the Boston stage revue "Footlight Parade," were rehearsed at the matinee show, it looks as if the customers are going to be treated to Miss Bacon shapely and graceful fan exercises some time during which she gained much of glamour by hiding behind a fan one or two at a time.

J. Harold Murray is as popular as when he appeared as the operatic hero of Rio Rita in the Ziegfeld stage success. He received much applause yesterday for his vocal offerings, which included "Drink, Drink, Drink" from "Pagliacci" and "La Donna e Mobile" from "Rigoletto."

A Paris act and a Lady Gigolo Week are the features of the Tip Top Trio and the Dixie Dandy dancers add to the show's entertainment value with clever performances.

LEWIS HANEY ON TREND

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, May 8—Before we can have sustained business recovery, prosperity and normal employment, we must first get rid of the economic germs which are infecting our system. As long as we find traces of greenbackism (Frazier-Lemke bill), NRAism (Guffey act, Ellenbogen bill, etc.), and vote-buying (Works Progress Administration), the depression infection will still keep us down.

One kind of germ that infects us is the fallacy, which economists have long isolated and called the "lump-of-work" notion. It is the notion that there is just so much work to do, and that our only recourse is to divide it up among the existing people.

Traces of this infection are to be found both among laborers and among business men. And as an example, I note the following episode:

* * *

At a recent stockholders' meeting, a man got up and said that he had noted a tendency on the part of the management to submit bids on government contracts that were identical with those of other producers. He asked if this did not mean monopoly and price-fixing.

The chairman of the board answered that he knew of no price-fixing, but he added this telltale remark: "There is only so much business, and we do not believe in squeezing the little fellow."

Just analyze this statement.

First this business leader says "There is only so much business"—the lump-of-work idea. No change. No seeking to expand. No progress. Just maintain the existing situation, and pro-rate the volume.

He implies that only a fixed number of pounds can be sold, and that each company in the business should have a fixed percentage of that total. He forgets that at a lower price he could sell and produce more goods, and at the same time reduce his expense per unit.

Second, the "little fellow" is not to be squeezed! But if he is inefficient, why shouldn't he be squeezed? Is business leadership to come down to a system of "holding the umbrella" over small concerns?

This business leader wants lemonade, but he doesn't want to squeeze any lemons.

You see, this statement means just the reverse of competition. It does mean price-fixing. If the big company can afford to reduce prices it should do so, for the benefit of all consumers. And if the "little fellow" cannot meet the reduction, why should he not quit? Consumers don't need his output, and they should not pay unnecessarily high prices just to keep him in business—and incidentally give bigger profits to the big fellow.

* * *

Justso, when organized labor demands a 30-hour week, it is infected with the lump-of-work germ. If there is only so much work to do, it may be divided up among the existing workers, efficient and inefficient. But why not expand, and have more work to do? Are man's wants all satisfied? Is our standard of living fixed, and incapable of further advance?

* * *

Like all economists worthy of the name, I maintain that the only way to maintain and raise our standards of living is to reduce costs of production, so that we can afford more and better products. We must get rid of inefficiency, both in capital and in labor, and in general the only sure way to do this lies in competition.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST OF THE YOUTH OF THE AMERICAS IN AVIATION

TODAY'S PILOTS OF MODELS —TOMORROW'S MODEL PILOTS!

Groups of Junior Birdmen and Birdwomen will trek to Boston Municipal airport tomorrow and visit the three hangars of the American Airlines, Inter-City Airlines and Shobe Airlines in the observance of "Junior Birdmen Day."

This special visit, made at the invitation of George Mason, representing the three companies, will bring to a close the activities of "Junior Birdmen Week" proclaimed by Governor Curley in commemoration of the organization's second birthday anniversary.

The highlights of the week included the issuance of the proclamation, the special full page for Junior Birdmen in last Sunday's Advertiser and attendance of six Birdmen guests at last Monday's Air Mail luncheon at the Bradford. Dedication of the weekly broadcast of the U. S. Army band's radio concert from Washington to the Junior Birdmen was also a feature of the birthday ceremonies.

Activities at Boston airport are of never-failing interest to Junior Birdmen and many of them go to field as often as they can. An unusual number of aircraft is expected to be on hand for inspection tomorrow and will include a Bellenca Airbus, a new Northrup, a Travelair seaplane and a Stinson, fully equipped for radio beam and blind flying.

Representatives of the companies will be on hand at each hangar to provide the members of the organization with information.

NOVICE ENTRIES DUE

By postal or letter or personal call at headquarters, all beginners who plan to enter the Novice Model Plane Flying Contest on Saturday, May 23, should announce their intentions now.

This contest will precede by a month the 1936 Wing Outdoor Air Races for Junior Birdmen.

Gliders and stick models will be flown in the Novice contest while gliders, stick models and cabin models will be flown in the air races. The gliders and stick models used by the beginners will be eligible for the air races. Specifications for them will be found in the air race manuals, which will be sent free upon request to all Birdmen. Three cent stamps should be enclosed with the requests for the manuals.

The novices, Birdmen who have never won a fifth to first place in an official meet, will compete for $40 in merchandise prizes, including a first prize of a $25 merchandise order good at the Boys' Shop of Kennedy's store and $15 in five merchandise orders good at the Best Model Supply Co.'s shop, 31 Bedford street, Boston.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA
(Membership open to all boys and girls 10 to 21)

I wish to join the Junior Birdmen of America. I enclose a dime (well wrapped) for my gold wings and other membership materials.

FRANC Sags to New LOW

GOVERNMENT FIGHTS PANIC

By Associated Press

Paris, May 8 — The French franc sagged to a new low in unofficial trading today as the government sought to prevent a financial panic.

The rate on the British pound, which has been reflecting the franc's weakness, rose from 75.55 franc to 75.66, while the United States dollar remained at 15.10 franc (6.58 cents to the franc) on the active foreign exchange market.

Leon Blum, Socialist party leader, who may be the next premier, announced he was watching the financial situation closely and expected to confer with Premier Sarraut.

Blum said he deplored yesterday's Champ attacks on the franc and French securities" on the Bourse.

Financial sources attributed the break in the Bourse partly to selling orders from the provinces, where the people were reported buying gold or foreign money to hoard.

(The French franc and French government securities have undergone repeated attacks in financial markets since the "people's front" of Socialists, Communists and Radicals-Socialists won a sweeping victory in the recent parliamentary elections. There have been rumors, officially denied, that the franc might be devaluated—remonetizing it from the gold standard, to which it has clung throughout the depression.)

Prices fluctuated wildly on the Bourse today. However, after early irregularity, leading French issues began to recover some of their losses and gave a steadier tone to the market.

Bank of France stock dropped 450 francs, closing at 5250 francs and bringing the week's loss to 2000 francs.

The dollar closed unchanged at its 15.19 franc quotation. This price, 6.58 cents to the franc, may be compared to the overnight New York rate of 6.58625 cents to the franc.

G. M. Sales Largest In History

New York, May 8 (AP)—General Motors' total April sales to dealers were the largest for any month in the company's history, it was reported today.

The cars and trucks sold to dealers in the United States and Canada, plus overseas shipments, last month were 229,467 units, against 196,721 in March and 184,059 in April last year.

Wall Street Hears

New York, May 8 (INS)—That between 200 to 300 locomotives will be requisitioned by the nation's railroads in the current year.

That the book value of Pathe Film (PHE) currently is around $6.75 a common share.

FRENCH Tariff TREATY

HEAVY DUTY SLASHES

(Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service.)

Washington, May 8—Tariff dikes against French alcoholic beverages are dismantled as much as 50 per cent under the Franco-American reciprocal trade agreement, Washington heard today. Secretary of State Hull and French Ambassador Andrew De Labouiaye signed the agreement Wednesday.

Though publication of the text is suppressed until next Wednesday, business interests heard a slash from $5 to $2.50 a gallon had been granted on brandies, cordials and liqueurs, and from $6 to $3 on champagne.

New York, California and Ohio vintners had vigorously demanded full retention of the existing duties to protect the domestic wine industry.

* * *

Safeguards against devaluation of the franc are riveted into the treaty, it was learned. In event of a rupture of measurable disturbance of Paris-New York exchange parity may propose modification or declare termination of the new schedules on thirty days' notice.

Forty per cent duty slashes are reported granted on French cotton laces, and 35 per cent on silk laces. On behalf of the Rhode Island lace industry, Senator Metcalfe, Republican, of that state, recently protested contemplated reductions. Partially as a result thereof, the agreement is confined to laces of a gauge not manufactured in the United States.

Roquefort and Camembert cheese, French walnut, cigarette papers, books, pile fabrics and textiles are among others reported accorded duty cuts, in amounts less than 50 per cent.

* * *

In return, France is understood to have pledged unconditional most favored nation treatment on motion films, typewriters, radio equipment and office appliances, involving liberalization of the latter's removal of quota restrictions. French quotas on American apples and French pears were lifted in 1935.

Tariff reductions on American petroleum products are reported lowered. French purchases of gasoline and refined petroleum products fell from 37 millions in 1929 to less than four million in 1934.

HUPP MOTOR Ruling Affirmed

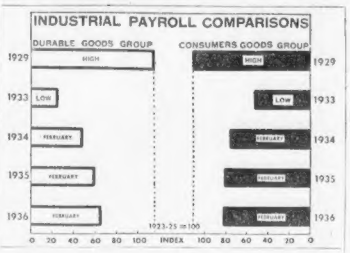
Cincinnati, O., May 8 (INS)—The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals today affirmed the ruling of the lower court in the Hupp Motor Company case. Charges of unfair ness at the original trial were considered by the higher court which decided that not subscribing, right of Archie M. Andrews, appellant, was affected.

Andrews, former chairman of the Hupp Motor Board, appealed from the ruling of Federal Judge Tuttle in a suit instituted by J. Walter Drake, a stockholder. The decision enjoined Andrews from interfering with operation of the company and declared void contracts held by him.

Bar Gold

London, May 8 (AP)—Bar gold declined 3 pence to the 5/8d. (Sterling price equivalent to $34.90.)

DURABLE GOODS



Wall Street Sidelights

New York, May 8—The present value of the outstanding $95,000,000 International Match bonds is calculated at $266.50 per $1000 in an appraisal made by Max Winkler, of Bernard, Winkler & Co.

He computes the sum available to holders at approximately $17,500,000, including the $8,500,000 cash proceeds from the sale of match properties to Swedish Match Co.

Of the total, the analysis states, $15,000,000 is expected to be distributed without delay, while the remaining $2,500,000 will be set aside as a special reserve. It adds:

"Since this amount will in all likelihood be consumed in some way by fees for trustees, attorneys, accountants, referees, experts, etc., the appraisal makes no allowance whatever for the remaining $2,500,000. The cash disbursement expected to be made shortly is equivalent to $133 per bond of $1000 par value, virtually equivalent to the present market price per bond."

Hard Coal Peace Aid to Reading

Reading Co., a railroad covering important hard coal regions east of the Susquehanna river, stands to profit from what now appears to be complete solution for peacetime anthracite labor uncertainties. The mileage of the road, which runs principally from Philadelphia to Reading, covers the area within a 100-mile radius of Reading conceded to be the most compact industrial area in Pennsylvania. Its freight traffic is directly proportional to Pennsylvania coal and industrial activity. Thus far this year its freight loadings are a little better than 5 per cent above a year ago, but during the past month they have been close to 10 per cent higher. Earnings of the road in the first 1936 quarter were around 28 cents a share on common stock, against 13 cents in the like 1935 period. Last year the road earned $2.98 on common, against $2.06 in 1934. Good earnings for the Reading boost the income of Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, which controls the Reading. Last year the Reading paid the B. & O. around $2,363,000 in dividends.

Gold Dust Near 1935 Low Price

Gold Dust yesterday sold within striking distance of its 1935 low price on selling attributed to dividend fears. These doubts have arisen as a result of the apparent inability of the company to completely recover the earnings decline suffered the last two years. In 1933 net was equal to $1.30 a share for the annual dividend of $1.20 a share. The year following the rate was reduced to 60 cents annually with earnings amounting to only 48 cents a share. Last fiscal year net was 97 cents a share and the dividend $1.20 a share. Early this year the company attired 60,000 shares of $6 preferred stock, leaving only one class of capital stock.

Free Gold Market Strongly Doubted

Revival of the gold flow into the United States from abroad has stirred interest again in the subject of a free gold market in the United States. Such a market exists in London. Banking opinion here, however, considers establishment of an open market in New York extremely unlikely. And certainly not nearby. To do so would require an act of Congress to begin with. Strong doubts exist that the present administration will loosen its grip on gold by modifying the strict nationalization it has instituted, according to observers. How completely gold is removed from private hands is emphasized by the fact that the big amounts arriving almost daily are transferred immediately to the United States Assay Office. The bank purchasing the metal never sees it. All the bank sees is a check. But since transactions are solely for profit, perhaps the bank doesn't mind—if the check is big enough.

Oil Firm Assets Swelled by Field

Valuable properties are owned by Barnsdall Oil Co. in the new State Capitol extension to the Oklahoma City pool and completion of another 20,000-barrel well recently emphasizes the large gain in corporate assets to this once relatively small concern by its holdings there, the New York American's correspondent at Tulsa reports. Barnsdall has six completed wells, ten drilling, twelve starting and five new locations made, a total of 33 probable wells, in which it has full interest. It also has a half interest in eight completed, ten drilling, two starting and four locations, totaling 24 wells probable, with the British-American Co., Phillips Petroleum Co., with interests in forty or more probable wells in the extension, and British-American, with interests in approximately 35 wells, also are gaining very rich new assets it was stated.

DEVALUATION Of Zloty Nearer

Warsaw, May 8 (INS)—Devaluation of the Zloty drew a step nearer today with the resignation of Col. Adam Koc as president of the Bank of Poland.

The move is essential, according to financiers, in order to increase Poland's export trade so that Poland can keep up with the rearmament programs of her neighbors.

PAYROLLS Increase In 1936 Shown

If we use their payrolls as yardsticks of recovery, we find that the durable goods group although considerably behind the consumers goods group, have recovered at a more rapid pace than the consumer group.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics payroll index of the durable goods group was 25 in February, 1933, as compared with an index number of 53 for the consumers' group. In February, 1936, the durable group index stood at 66, a gain of 41 points over February, 1933.

The consumers' group index registered 82.7, a gain of 29.7 points over the 1933 period. In fact there was very little change in this index number from February, 1935, when it stood at 82.6.

The gain in the durable goods group is due in part to the strong revival in the building industries, and the increased demand for agricultural implements and railroad equipment.

1936 Seen As Record Year

Business is on the upturn and the year 1936 will be the best that the food and grocery business has known since 1929.

More than 800 members and guests of the Manufacturers Representatives Association of New England were so assured at last night's 14th annual dinner, the first in the organization's history, at Hotel Statler.

Outstanding guests at the dinner included Winthrop C. Adams, of Duval Foods, Inc.; Lewis C. Shaw, of Nation-Wide Stores; W. L. Sweet, president of the Rumford Chemical Works; Arthur C. Curran, president of the Boston Food Brokers' Association; Fred C. Wurtz, of the Welch Grape Juice Company, and Harry F. Woodward.

Other officers serving with President Cain are Edwin F. Gernan, first vice president; Philip A. Eaton, second vice president; C. Walter Erb, treasurer, and William H. Coughlin, secretary.

FOREIGN Investors Gain RAPIDLY

IMPORTANT TO MARKETS

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser
(Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service.)

New York, May 8—The infiltration of overseas capital for investment, as disclosed in the new international balance of payments report, makes it clear that no important progress has been made toward insulating this country from the sparks of disturbing foreign contingencies.

On the contrary, foreigners, in increasing their holdings of American stocks and bonds by $442,000,000 in 1935 have brought their interest in American business to a new peak and at the same time have raised their bank deposits to the highest level since the nadir of the depression.

They have thus once more become a large influence in American financial markets. Accordingly, in the recent stock market reaction, a major question for mental speculation was the extent of foreign selling.

It will be recalled that in October, 1929, the panic was precipitated by British liquidation, following the latter nation's crisis that put overseas institutions in need of improving their cash position.

With Europeans an important creditor in the United States in respect to both short term balances and liquid securities, pressure against American financial markets could potentially occur, whenever foreigners on account of war, financial embarrassment at home or otherwise decide to liquidate.

Such foreign operations are of importance because they are likely to have more quickly and concentration than purchases and sales by millions of unorganized American investors.

Some important financial advisers of the present administration at Washington are inclined to minimize these possibilities on the theory that foreigners are so thoroughly sold on American prospects that they will be reluctant to reduce their holdings.

That, of course, is a mere expression of opinion and is subject to change without notice, especially when, as and if foreigners assume that American issues have been overvalued.

Another possibility deserves consideration. That is the building up of a concentrated foreign stake, largely British, in American companies. Even a small concentrated unit of stock can wield an important influence in management.

It will be interesting to observe whether the absentee owners will seek to exert a voice in American corporate management. That possibility is especially important in connection with the effort to develop a balanced internal economy.

The heavy influx of gold, which has been largely responsible for much of the American price to $35 an ounce, has given foreigners immense buying power in this market, which has been used primarily for capital transactions while the favorable balance of trade in goods of the American people has been shrinking, and was completely effected during the first quarter of 1936.

CHEVROLET Sets New Record

Chevrolet sales in April totaled 134,431 cars and trucks, a new high mark for any single month in the company's history and nearly 35 per cent over April, 1935, according to W. E. Holler, vice-president and general sales manager.

Sales for year to May 1, total 496,629, also a new all-time record for the first four months' period, of 1935.

Sales of used cars were 197,270 in April and 729,104 in the first four months, both figures represent new all-time highs.

PIPE & FOUNDRY Dividend

U. S. Pipe & Foundry Co. declared three quarterly dividends of 37½ cents, payable July 20, October 20 and December 21 to stock of record June 30, September 30 and November 30, respectively.

This places the stock on $1.50 annual basis. Previously dividends were not styled quarterly, but were 37½ cents each in three months' periods.

Equipment Orders

During April a total of 15 locomotives, of which six were steam, seven Diesel-electric and two propane-electric were contracted, according to Railway Age. A total of 3650 freight cars and 50 passenger cars were placed.

CARL P. DENNETT

Protests NEW TAX Scheme

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

Carl P. Dennett, Boston banker, adds his voice to those of other business men protesting against the new tax bill now under consideration by Congress.

In a letter to Senator Walsh he says the bill is unworkable, unsound and places undue and unnecessary hardships upon business.

Mr. Dennett specifically believes that enactment of the bill will retard recovery and re-employment; that it will increase instead of decrease inequities; that it will make it impossible for corporations to compute with any degree of accuracy their taxes, and will penalize them for things beyond their control; and, finally, that it will seriously retard the growth and development of business.

Of all Mr. Dennett's comments on the bill in his letter to Senator Walsh, the most interesting to us is his comment on an editorial in which that he does not believe it possible for any reasonable man to figure out all the problems involved in arriving at either earnings or profits or accumulated earnings and profits. Such features, Mr. Dennett concludes, are entirely unworkable and if the bill must be passed he asks Senator Walsh to give the classification in many important respects.

* * *

Notebook: We hear that the statistical department of Sears Roebuck is convinced the country is on the verge of one of the greatest residential building booms ever witnessed . . . Doehler Die Casting may show very close to $1 per share in the second quarter . . . Goodrich builds tell us that full year earnings of $3 per share will not surprise them in the least . . . Some of the long range buyers in the railroad equipment industry say that their hopes for the immediate future are of small consequence . . . It is the last half of the year they look to . . . Incidentally some of the equipment preferreds look attractive.

* * *

The stock market failed to rally back a full 50 per cent of the previous decline. Which is rather startling. But when the decline set in on Thursday we could not help but note the unanimity of bearish opinion. A full return to old bears was a sure thing, and it was almost as certain that new lows would soon be registered. Perhaps all this is true. But we are cynics when Street opinion is practically unanimous. So rather than we avoid attempts to outline minor trends we must say chances are better for some real strength than weakness is in the offing from the low levels seen today.

* * *

This and That: All along the line there are certain big stocks that will probably register new lows . . . These, it may be recalled, are the same high priced, high flying issues we suggested as first candidates in reducing trading accounts in March . . . But average stocks seem fairly well cleaned out and could be considered reasonably cheap if it were not for untoward news developments . . . In any event we doubt if important interests are thinking ahead of the crowd and once again we suggest suspension of selling operations.

Nation to Observe Insurance Week

Life insurance underwriters in this city, and about 3000 other cities and towns throughout the United States, are observing Life Insurance Week, May 11th to 18th, with a program which is broader in scope than those of the three previous annual weeks devoted to informing the public on the value of insurance and its place in the economic picture.

This year's observance of Life Insurance Week is all the more significant, local underwriters state, because the volume of new life insurance purchased in this country in 1935 exceeds that of any year since prior to the depression. Present estimates indicate that 15.5 was a record-breaker in this respect.

DULL TRADING PREVAILS

New York, May 8—There were scattered strong spots in today's stock market, but the list, as a whole, seemed unable to find solid recovery footing.

The news, including that from abroad, was a bit mixed, and tended to accentuate the wariness of most traders. The thinness of many issues and the dullness of dealings helped to becloud trends.

In the upper brackets for fractions to two points near the start of the session, Bethlehem, Public Service, Morris, Commercial Credit, Schenley, Douglas Aircraft, Standard Oil of New Jersey, DuPont, American Telephone and Consolidated Edison.

The Worker Pays

WHEN THE ORDINARY citizen, with a small weekly wage, awakens to the fact that his earnings are being taxed proportionally as an equal or even a greater degree than those who are in the upper brackets, he will begin to be TAX-CONSCIOUS.

And TAX-CONSCIOUSNESS is the "AWAKENING" that this country needs just now.

The tax monomaniacs in power in city, state and national governments are gradually absorbing the incomes of our working people by subtle INDIRECT TAXATION.

The man who makes $2,500 or less a year may never see an income tax blank or a tax collector.

But, nevertheless, just $219 of his income, according to a survey made by the Guaranty Trust Company, of New York City, goes for TAXES.

Because of the direct taxes LEVIED ON EARNINGS IN THE HIGHER BRACKETS, $4.20 is "absorbed" out of a man's envelope that contains a weekly wage of $48—or NINE CENTS OUT OF EVERY DOLLAR SPENT.

THE MAN of small fortune—that is, three-quarters and more of all the American people—pays this artfully concealed tax every time he pays his rent, buys meat or bread or a pair of shoes for his baby.

Every new tax measure enacted in Washington or the State Capital is a tax ON HIS WEEKLY PAY ENVELOPE.

Taxation concerns every man, woman and baby in the country.

WRITE TO YOUR Congressman, your Senator, your Representatives in the State Legislature, protesting ANY FURTHER CONFISCATION OF YOUR WEEKLY WAGE IN THE SHAPE OF TAXES.

SLASH EXPENSES, LOP OFF THE POLITICAL PARASITES, RETRENCH — AND TAXES WILL COME DOWN AUTOMATICALLY.

Men and Planes

AMERICA IS beginning to turn its attention seriously to the problem of arming itself for aerial defense. Approval in Congress of a program calling for construction of 4,000 modern fighting planes is important. It is not adequate, but it is progress.

These 4,000 planes will require, conservatively, at least 12,000 trained pilots. That would allow only three competent pilots for each ship.

If we should build 50,000 planes, which would not be too many, we would need at a minimum three times that number of dependable pilots.

We do not have either the ships or the men, of course. We could have the ships, merely by deciding to have them. Industrially, we are capable of doing anything we want to do.

But effective manpower is not as easily achieved. Experts can lay out the plans for a fighting plane, and skilled hands will turn it out exactly as it is intended to be.

But you can never tell how useful a trained man will be until he is put to the test on the firing line. In a group of men given exactly the same facilities of instruction and equipment, some will prove incompetent, others cowardly.

The training of manpower must, therefore, be on a quantity basis. Facilities for training expert aviators are as important as factories for building planes. We do not have them now, and apparently we are making little progress toward having them.

Mother Nature's Lesson

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

The picture shows the Carlson twins, Dot and Flo. Betty DiPesa of the Boston Evening American staff is seated between them. Dot and Flo weigh 576 and 570 pounds. Betty 80.

Diets and reducing programs do not interest these twins of twins. They are happy as they are. Their smile proves that.

Dot and Flo couldn't run up stairs, beat rivals to news, race to a typewriter. They don't have to. Their job is to sit down and look their pleasant selves.

Study Dot, Flo and Betty. Grasp the lesson of the picture. And realize that somewhere there is a job especially made for YOU. Seek that job. Get it. Be happy.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, May 8—Thoughts while strolling: John V. A. Weaver sounds like a swing from one horizontal bar to another. So much Hollywood talk about the steel-trap came-backs of Tess Slesinger. For instance! Hard to beat Ben Aiwell's pent house name—"Povany Heights." Walter Huston is a perfect Ramsay MacDonald of 20 years ago. And Gail Patrick and Florence Vidor Heifetz might be sisters. Who remember when Jim Corbett was called an "upstart dude" after licking Sullivan? Ewing Galloway calls writing "phrase balancing."

O. O. McIntyre

Marine artists want to fight with anyone calling a ship a boat. Henry Reuterdahl, par example. Grove Patterson is scouting for a St. Bernard to name "Elmer." Lots of slugging going on for Grover Whalen for Mayor. And Fred Astaire better pick up some new steps after that dancing triumph of Ray Bolger.

Add Fauntleroy moniker: Oswald Garrison Villard. They don't seem able to marry off Howard Hughes. Not many young men are enjoying life more than Walter Chrysler, Jr. Or elderly men more than the shy Col. E. M. House. Sophie Tucker leading her own orchestra should be razz-tazzy.

About this time every year I want to get hold of a paint bucket and clock around. Writing routine notes: Ursula Parrott does hers between 7 p. m. and 4 a. m. Rebecca West goes to her typewriter at 10 p. m. What Amon Carter could do with that wa-hoo cowboy song on a loose evening!

Elevator strike stories continue to bob up. This one: Sigmund Romberg was quartered on the 17th floor of an apartment house and when service stopped Romberg was notified that if he wanted to get out of the building he must walk. He started down, reached the eighth floor and stopped. "I can't make it," he gasped, turned and climbed back nine floors to his quarters.

Many believe that when George Horace Lorimer pulls down his desk top figuratively for the last time at The Saturday Evening Post his successor will be his son Graeme and that the young man's name will fly at the masthead as has his father's for so long. Already young Lorimer with his wife has turned out some fast selling books.

His father in formative days created a large writing following. The son is now associate editor and is becoming more and more head contact man between authors and the magazine.

Another son of a writing man is determined to follow in the footsteps of his father. He is Octavus Roy Cohen, Jr., and has set forth the hardest way by adopting a pen name that even his parents do not know. He wants no editorial office sympathy on account of his dad's reputation.

Floyd Gibbons believes his life was saved when he became ill-ess in Ethiopia with a tropical scourge that shucked off 60 pounds in two weeks. His New York doctor had guessed what might befall him and wrote explicit diagnoses and instructions to be followed in case the illness developed.

Emil Coleman holds the long distance dance orchestra playing record. At a debutante party on Long Island some time ago his band, save for a few brief pauses to snaffle cigarette puffs, played without interruption from 10:30 p. m. until 8:30 a. m. Eddy Duchin once improvised on the piano for five hours straight for a dance-mad Casino party. And was rewarded with a thousand-dollar bill.

Brooklyn has always been the haven for amateur performers. Even in the days of the Bowery get-rich-quick nights, from which originated the idea. Nobody seems to know why. It has never been stage-conscious and only recently it tried to ban the usual visit of the circus.

Almost 60 per cent of the applicants for the Major Bowes, Fred Allen and other programs come from across the bridge, and what is more a big percentage of the touring amateur shows are from there. In other days, the Brooklyn furnished more burlesque troupers than any other city in America. Just one of those things.

A young collegiate, evidently smacked in the face with a bar towel, calling from his barber chair in the Waldorf: "Prithee, tonsor, how about my copping a nape of the neck peek?"

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

This new campus scheme—college students trying to wipe war off the map by ridicule—organizing themselves into Future Veterans and Gold Star Mothers, and demanding compensations and bonuses beforehand, so they can enjoy them while the enjoying is good—

Does the idea shock you? Personally, I think it's not so bad—since behind the joke lies grim reality.

Elsie Robinson

If there IS a war, those boys will have to die in it . . . those girls will have to break their hearts because of it. So if these young people can outsmart their own tragic doom, and sidestep the result of their elders' ghastly blunders—more power to you, Kids, say I.

But listen, youngsters—

I'm a pacifist too. I too do not believe in war. I do not believe that war is noble or sacred or, in any bloody department of it, profitable to human life or spirit. And I'm all for doing anything that will outlaw it forever.

PRACTICAL PACIFICISM

Yet nevertheless I'm 53 as against your 18 or 20. I've been around these parts considerable and haven't passed up many of the questions, or missed many of the answers. And while I'm a pacifist, I'm a practical one. My pacification is based on that well-known factor called human nature.

Now, human nature is a good thing. But it's also an ornery thing. It's ornery, because it isn't as yet, fully formed. It may, and it does, make many of the motions of a god. But it also still has many of the motions of a gorilla. And there's never any telling which it's going to be next.

When I see wings sprouting on human shoulder blades and halos springing spontaneously from diplomats' domes, I'll believe that we can stop war by exchanging candy hearts—but not until.

So while my pacificism is one hundred per cent, it harbors no ga-ga illusions about what I'm dealing with, either in myself or the Other Fellow. And I know from plenty of experience, and most of it unladylike, that—

THE ONLY PACIFICISM THAT WORKS IS THE PACIFICISM THAT PACKS A PUNCH.

In other words—there's just one way to outlaw war, and that is by making the prospect so hellishly unhealthy that no one will want to start one with you. Otherwise, you're simply out of luck.

BE YOUR AGE

This idea of laughing at war and organizing against war is fine stuff. But, for the luvva Mike, be your age, youngsters! You are—you protest—the hard-boiled generation that doesn't believe in fairy tales or subscribe to Santa Claus. Which—this world being what it is today—is a smart act and does you proud.

BUT IF YOU ARE GOING TO BE HARD-BOILED, BE HARD-BOILED. DON'T TALK LIKE IL DUCE ONE MINUTE—AND ACT LIKE YOUR GREAT-AUNT HEPZIBAH, THE NEXT.

Meaning what? Meaning this—

It's both smart and modern to laugh at war, and spread your laughter over every campus, into every congressional hall—

BUT IT'S PLAIN SCREWY AND SAPPY SENTIMENTALITY TO THINK THAT YOU'LL STOP WAR BY JUST GIGGLING ABOUT IT.

War doesn't start on college campuses—and it can't be stopped there. War is started in small, quiet rooms by a lot of dirty-dealing Dead Pans to whom you and your giggles are just kiddy games.

What do they care if you or your children die? Not a hoot in the hades they're so expert at raising.

BUT SHOW THEM THAT WAR MAY PUT A DENT IN THEIR OWN HEALTH OR BANK ROLL — AND THEY WILL THINK TWICE BEFORE STARTING ONE.

WHAT DO THEY CARE?

Yes. I agree with you—war IS a racket. But there's a worse one. Being walloped into a horrible mass of carrion is a worse one.

AND THIS IS EXACTLY WHAT HAPPENS—AND NOTHING ELSE BUT—TO PEOPLE WHO THINK SWEET KISSES WILL STOP MACHINE GUNS.

PACK YOUR PACIFICISM WITH A PUNCH!

AND MAKE IT SO GOSH-AWFUL POWERFUL THAT NO FOREIGN SO-N'-SO DARE EVER SET FOOT OR PLANE ON AN ARMORED AMERICAN SOIL.

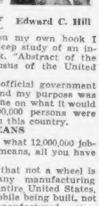
The Unemployment Census

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

I have heard repeatedly, as no doubt each of you has heard, that upwards of 12,000,000 persons are out of work in the United States. I heard Senator Hastings of Delaware give the figure as 12,500,000 in a radio address, and I read an American Federation of Labor report, attributed to its president, William Green, that 12,185,000 are jobless.



Edward C. Hill

The number has been challenged, and on my own hook I went into a deep study of an interesting book, "Abstract of the Fifteenth Census of the United States, 1930."

This is an official government publication, and my purpose was to get some line on what it would mean if 12,000,000 persons were unemployed in this country.

WHAT IT MEANS

To visualize what 12,000,000 jobless workers means, all you have to do is this:

1—Imagine that not a wheel is turning in any manufacturing plant in the entire United States, not an automobile being built, not a cigarette manufactured, not a button being sewed on a garment, not a loaf of bread being baked and not a glass of beer being brewed. Then you will have a picture of 8,858,743 persons out of work, for such is the number of wage earners in manufactures as reported by the census of 1930, which was completed early in that year before the depression had set in deeply.

2—For the other 3,000,000-odd, to bring the total to over 12,000,000, you must imagine that every church, theater, school, college, hospital and court is closed for want of clergymen, actors, teachers, doctors, judges and lawyers. You must imagine that not one of the 225,000 engineers in the country has a job, that there are no sports for want of jobs for participants and attendants, and that not one dentist in our 70,000 has a tooth to pull or a cavity to fill. In a word, not a person classified in "Professional Service" under the census will be employed.

The total of all wage-earners in manufactures and all persons engaged in professional service, was in 1930, 12,092,618.

Maybe, 12,000,000 persons are out of work, but I won't believe that until it is put down in black and white, occupation by occupation, in front of me. The census tells me that the normal employment in this country is about 50 per cent of the number of persons who are ten years old and over. That is, the census says that such a number follows "gainful occupations."

ONE OF FOUR JOBLESS

On a basis of a population of 128,000,000, this would mean that 51,000,000 persons should be following gainful occupations. Well, if 12,000,000 are not, that would mean one of every four workers is out of a job.

I do not think that such a condition holds for New York City, or for other cities I have been in in the last two years. Certainly, it isn't true of Washington, where instead of every one out of four not having a job every one in four seems to have two cars and to be driving both of them at the same time.

Another table in the census which interested me very much was one dealing with the number of gainful workers in the country since 1880. In this connection I would suggest to Harry Hopkins that he give up his survey of the effect of machinery on employment. These figures will show him that the machine age has definitely created jobs.

WORKERS INCREASE

Take 1880 for instance, when the only machinery one bothered about was the sewing machine and the wheelbarrow. The population of the country in that year was 50,155,73, and the number of gainful workers was 17,392,099. Thus 34 per cent of the entire population was gainfully employed. In 1930, the population of the country was 122,775,046 and the number of gainfully employed was 48,830,000, a percentage of 39 per cent.

But this is the thing to consider:

The number of gainful workers increased more than the total population increased, in spite of, or, rather because of, the automobile, the airplane and the electric refrigerator.

Business on Trial

By B. C. Forbes

Scene: Huge Government office at Washington resembling court-room. Perched on bench, anemic, professorial-looking, pompous Chief of the Bureaucrats' Bureau. Room crowded with business leaders.

BUREAUCRAT: pounding desk with gavel: Order! You have been summoned here to answer certain questions. Henry Ford, please take the stand.

Mr. Ford does so.

BUREAUCRAT: Is it true that you have lowered the cost of manufacturing automobiles since you started your business?

MR. FORD: Yes. At one time it would have cost more than $3000 to produce the car we now sell for $700. In fact as good a car couldn't then have been built at any price.

BUREAUCRAT: You have done this without cutting wages?

FORD: We are paying twice as much now as we once paid.

* * *

BUREAUCRAT: President Sloan of General Motors please take that stand . . . Has your corporation cut production costs?

SLOAN: Most decidedly. In 1908, when there were 194,000 cars registered in America, the average price that year was around $2800. Last year, when 23,500,000 cars were registered, the average price was approximately $700.

BUREAUCRAT: And you admit that the cars you make today are better than those made then?

SLOAN: Yes, very much better.

* * *

BUREAUCRAT: Wendell L. Willkie please take the stand . . . You are head of the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation and familiar with the utility industry? Have you reduced costs?

WILLKIE: Yes. In the early days of this century it took seven pounds of coal to generate one kilowatt hour; today we use less than 1¼ pounds.

BUREAUCRAT: And you have reduced rates?

WILLKIE: Practically continuously—and are still reducing them.

* * *

BUREAUCRAT: Walter S. Gifford please take the stand . . . As president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, you are able to tell whether costs in your industry have been cut?

GIFFORD: They have, simultaneously with tremendous improvement and expansion in the service. We cut costs so much that we are able to make reductions in long distance rates which produced savings to subscribers of $14,500,000 between 1926 and 1931.

* * *

BUREAUCRAT: Thomas M. Girdler, head of Republic Steel Corporation, will please take the stand . . . I have before me a copy of a speech recently made by you in which this passage occurs:

"An industrial company has only one justification for existence, and that is to make available to consumers those products which represent the necessities, the comforts and the luxuries of life and to bring them within the purchasing power of a great many people."

Did you make that statement?

* * *

BUREAUCRAT: David Sarnoff please take the stand . . . You are head of the Radio Corporation of America. Have manufacturing costs declined?

SARNOFF: Radios only a few years ago cost anywhere from one hundred dollars to several hundred dollars. Prices have not only been cut in half but very much more. And they are very much better made.

* * *

BUREAUCRAT: Gerald Swope please take the stand . . . Has General Electric of which you are president, sought to reduce manufacturing costs?

SWOPE: You bet! We sell thousands of different articles and practically all costs and prices have been slashed and slashed. Domestic refrigerators used to be within reach of only the wealthy. So much have prices been reduced that they are now installed in almost every modern home. And wage rates in our industry have been greatly increased.

* * *

* * *

BUREAUCRAT: Gentlemen, you have all been guilty of most reprehensible conduct. The head of this Government, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, made this emphatic statement in his public address in New York on April 25:

"REDUCTION OF COSTS OF MANUFACTURE DOES NOT MEAN MORE PURCHASING POWER AND MORE GOODS CONSUMED. IT MEANS JUST THE OPPOSITE."

The Bureaucrats' Bureau has prepared a bill, to be rubber-stamped by Congress, absolutely prohibiting reduction of costs of manufacture. I regret that such a law could not be made retroactive so that all of you could be sent to jail.

WILLKIE: But TENNESSEE VALLEY AUTHORITY, sponsored by the New Deal, promises to cut costs of production.

BUREAUCRAT: You're wrong. It promises only to cut RATES. No department of this Administration would dream of reducing the cost of doing anything. Haven't we led the whole world in INCREASING the cost of government, in INCREASING national debt? Give us a little more time and we will lead the whole world in INCREASING taxes . . . The proceedings are adjourned!
